OFFENSIVE TACKLE

BATSON Can TACKLE Any Textile Need!

For over 50 years, Batson Yarn and Fabrics Machinery Group, Inc., has provided capital equipment, machinery parts and technical service consultation to the textile industry.

We proudly offer the following top quality products:

Alexco:

Off-loom take-ups, fabric inspection equipment and gantries.

Batson:

Material handling equipment.

Biella Shrunk Process:

Dry finishing equipment for woolen/worsted fabrics and synthetics.

BRD:

Noise control systems, including sound enclosures.

Corgi:

Cone to cone, hank to cone winders, dewinders and knit yarn recovery machinery.

DMP:

Waste water treatment systems.

Dornier:

Rigid rapier weaving machinery with patented, positively controlled filling transfer, dobby or jacquard motion; air-jet weaving for high quality fabrics; through air dryers, thermal bonding; and knit finishing machines - EcoFix®, EcoSqueeze® and EcoCombine®.

Fehrer:

Nonwoven, web forming, and needle punch machinery.

Flenco:

Oil and grease lubrication systems.

Greased Lightning:

High performance cleaner and degreaser.

Jenkins:

Waste briquetting machinery, Rota-Clean fans.

Keith® Manufacturing:

Walking Floor®, unloading and conveying systems.

Knotex:

Warp tying equipment, including computer-controlled machinery, drawing-in systems and frames.

Lemaire:

Transfer printing systems for warp yarn and fabrics and decorative lamination systems.

Malcam:

Moisture measurement equipment for packages, bales, modules and containers.

NANOsystems:

Intelligent camera systems for edge guiding/trimming systems for simple and complex fabric inspection.

Nordson:

Hot melt and melt blown for coating and web forming machines.

Parex-Mather:

Singeing range vacuum saturation machines, compressive shrinkage machines for textile finishing.

RF Systems:

Radio frequency ovens for hanks, cones, fabric and nonwovens.

Recomo:

Standard application and complex coating systems.

Rolando:

Textile waste recycling systems for yarn, fabric, fiber, nonwovens and carpet.

Smart Machines:

Ovens, slitters, entry/exit doffing for needle looms, accumulators.

Temafa:

Fiber opening and blending systems for carpet, nonwovens, woolen/worsted and spinning.

VTA:

Sectional warping, direct warping and warping creels.

Welker:

Yarn conditioning and steaming systems.

William Tatham:

Carding and crosslapping systems for synthetics, woolens, nonwovens and sliver knitting.

Tigers #5 in Both Polls

Clemson's 5-0 start has brought Clemson to a number-five ranking in the nation in both polls (AP and USA Today/ESPN Coaches — see page 4). This number-five ranking is Clemson's best since Sept. 12, 1988 when Clemson was ranked third with a 2-0 record.

Ironically, Bobby Bowden, the father of Clemson Head Coach Tommy Bowden, defeated that third-ranked Clemson team, 24-21, in the famous "Puntrookie Game" and knocked Clemson out of the top five. Clemson has not been back since. The Tigers dropped to 12th in the nation after that loss, then finished 10-2 and ranked ninth in the final AP poll.

Of course, Clemson's highest ranking on record is number-one. Clemson was number one in the Nov. 30, 1981 poll, then again in the Jan. 3, 1982 poll. Clemson defeated Nebraska 22-15 to win the 1981 National Championship, Clemson's only national championship in college football history.

The Tigers have been ranked in the top five of the AP poll 18 times (including this week). Clemson was first ranked in the top five in 1959, a number-five ranking under Frank Howard on Sept. 21, 1959. Clemson was ranked in the top five for eight rankings in 1981, for the first four polls of 1984 and for the first four polls of 1988.

NC State and Clemson Both Undefeated

Clemson (5-0) and NC State (4-0) are both undefeated heading into Saturday's game at Death Valley. Believe it or not, this is the first time in the 59-year history of Death Valley that two teams with a perfect record and at least four victories have met. Plenty of undefeated teams have come to Death Valley and Clemson has been undefeated deep into many seasons, but never have two teams with a perfect record and at least four wins faced off on this famous turf.

Zachery Nearing Touchdown Record

Travis Zachery scored two more touchdowns in Clemson's win over Duke last week. It gave the junior running back 29 career touchdowns, 26 rushing and three receiving. Zachery is closing in on the Clemson all-time record for touchdowns scored. The mark is 32, held by Lester Brown, who played tailback for the Tigers from 1976-79.

Zachery stands third heading into this game with his 29 total. The legendary Fred Cone, who played three years on the varsity, stands second with 31 touchdowns registered between 1948-50. With his two touchdowns last week, Zachery moved ahead of such well known Clemson players as Ray Mathews, Terry Allen and Kenny Flowers.

Zachery is having another solid all-around season. He stands seventh in the ACC in rushing with 73 yards per game. His 5.5 average is third best in the league, trailing only teammates Woodrow Dantzler (7.9) and freshman Keith Kelly (5.6).

Zachery has 364 yards rushing this season and 1819 for his career. That total is 17th best in Clemson history. The native of Marietta, GA needs just 181 rushing yards to become just the 14th player in Clemson history to rush for over 2000 yards in a career.

Clemson Leads Nation in Pass Defense

While Woodrow Dantzler and the Clemson offense has received much of the attention this year, the Clemson defense has certainly done its part in putting Clemson in the top five in the nation. Clemson leads the nation in total defense, allowing just 199.2 yards per game, and ranks tied for sixth in the country in scoring defense, giving up 9.6 points a game.

Clemson has been especially proficient in the area of pass defense. The Tigers lead the nation in pass efficiency defense with a 74.48 rating. The opposition has completed just 44.4 percent of its passes and is averaging just 4.35 yards per pass attempt. Those are near record figures for the Clemson program. Clemson has allowed just one touchdown pass and has had six interceptions.

There are many leaders in the secondary for Jack Hines' unit. Charles Hafley has 34 tackles, while Robert Carswell has 30. They rank three, four on the Clemson team in tackles. Sophomore Brian Mance has three interceptions and leads the team in takeaways with four. He is ranked 15th in the nation in interceptions, a figure that was helped by a 57-yard interception return at Duke. Darrel Crutchfield had seven tackles and four passes broken up at Virginia to key that win.

Dantzler Trying to be First for 2000-1000

Heisman Trophy voters are usually attracted to an unusual and extraordinary statistical accomplishment. Clemson quarterback Woodrow Dantzler has a realistic chance of doing something that no other Division I quarterback in history has accomplished. Prior to the season Clemson Head Coach Tommy Bowden told members of the media that Dantzler had a chance to become the first quarterback in NCAA history to record at least 1000 yards rushing and 2000 yards passing in the same season.

Ten different quarterbacks on 11 occasions have had at least 1000 of each in the same season, but none of the 1000-yard rushers has reached 2000 yards passing. The closest to reaching both levels is Brian Mitchell, who had 1311 rushing and 1966 passing in 1989 at Louisiana-

Lafayette. Mitchell has gone on to an NFL career as one of the top kick returners in the league and he is still playing with the Eagles.

Dantzler has 629 yards rushing and 865 yards passing through five games this year. He is on pace for a 1383-yard rushing season and a 1903-yard passing season for an 11-game regular season schedule. He leads the ACC and ranks 11th in the nation in rushing and is ranked fourth in the nation in passing efficiency with a 163.3 mark.

For those of you who might doubt Dantzler's ability to accomplish the 2000, 1000 double, check Dantzler's first 11 games as a Tiger quarterback. For his first 11 games in which he took the majority of the snaps as Clemson's quarterback he passed for 2095 yards and rushed 1037. After the Duke game, his 12-game numbers read 2269 yards passing and 1171 yards rushing. For his 12 games as Clemson quarterback he has averaged 98 yards a game rushing and 189 yards a game through the air.

Dantzler Ranked in Top 12 in Five Areas

Clemson quarterback Woodrow Dantzler is ranked in the top 12 in the nation in five different statistical categories, a testimony to his all-around abilities. Dantzler ranks fourth in the nation in passing efficiency with a 163.3 figure and fourth in points responsible for (19.2 PPG). He is ranked fifth in total offense with a 298.8 figure and is tied for 12th in points per game with 9.6. Finally, Dantzler is 11th in the nation in rushing with an average of 125 yards per game.

It is safe to say that this is the highest a Clemson quarterback has ever ranked in rushing at any time in a season. With those strong rushing stats, Dantzler is even ranked in all-purpose running, standing 38th this week.

Dantzler has shown his versatility in the touchdown responsibility area. In five games he has already accounted for 16 touchdowns, eight rushing and eight passing. The Clemson record for an entire season is 19 by Mark Fellers in 1974.

Dantzler the Passer

Clemson quarterback Woodrow Dantzler gets a lot of attention for his running ability. And he should, he leads all quarterbacks nationally in rushing and is first in the ACC overall with 125 yards per game. But, not only does he lead the ACC in rushing, he ranks fourth in the nation in passing efficiency.

Dantzler is also a fine passer as his 64 percent completion percentage and 163.3 passing efficiency rating shows. He has completed 63-98 passes for 865 yards and eight touchdowns. He has thrown just one interception this year (a pass that was tipped) and had a streak of 79 straight passes without an interception to open the season.

For his career Dantzler is now first in passing efficiency (136.5), first in completion percentage (.579) and first in interception avoidance (2.22 %). Dantzler is also fifth in yards per attempt and eighth in total touchdown passes.

Clemson Scoring on Record Pace

Clemson is scoring points and an incredible rate through the first five games. The Tigers rank fourth in the nation in scoring with an average of 47.6 points per game. The school record for scoring average per game is 38.0 set back in 1901 by John Heisman's second team. As far as total points scored is concerned, the record is 368, a mark held by the 1989 and 1978 Clemson teams.

Zachery needs just three touchdowns to tie Lester Brown's career record.

Today's Game

They did that in 12 games.

Here are some quick facts on Clemson's scoring offense so far this year:

- Clemson has scored 238 points so far this year. That total through five games is already more points than Clemson scored in 82 of its 104 previous seasons.

- Clemson already has had three different games in which it has scored more than 50 points. The only other team in Clemson history that has had three 50-point games is the undefeated team of 1950. Ironically, this is of course the 50-year anniversary of that team, and it will be honored at the Oct. 28 Georgia Tech game.

- Clemson already has scored 32 touchdowns. The record for a season is 48, set in 1950.

- Clemson's 238 points is the most ever scored by a Tiger team through the first five games of the season.

- Clemson's 52 points scored at Duke rank as the sixth most ever by a Clemson team on the opponent's home field. It is the most points scored on the road since 1984 when Clemson won at Virginia, 55-0.

- Clemson quarterback Woodrow Dantzler has accounted for 16 touchdowns this year, eight rushing and eight passing. That is an average of 19.2 points a game, just off the 20.9 scoring average Will Solomon had when he led the ACC in scoring in men's basketball last year.

- Eleven different Clemson players have scored at least one touchdown this year.

- This is the first time in history Clemson has scored at least 30 points in each of the first five games of the season. In fact, it is the first time in history that Clemson has scored at least 30 points in five consecutive games at any point in the season. The 1950 Clemson team had a streak of four straight games of at least 35 points.

Pack Features Standout Freshman QB

NC State has been the Cardiac Pack so far this year. Chuck Amato's team comes to Clemson with a 4-0 record and it includes two wins in overtime, plus another when it blocked a field goal attempt on the last play of the game to claim victory. The Pack now has four overtime wins since 1996, the year the rule was put into college football. NC State and Mississippi have the most overtime wins with four out of all Division I colleges.

The leader of the Pack has been a first-year freshman, quarterback Phillip Rivers. He has already led NC State to three come-from-behind wins in his short career. In the fourth quarter this year he is 21-40 for 335 yards and five touchdowns. He was incredible in the win over Indiana with over 400 yards passing and a school record tying five touchdown passes.

Rivers has some options to go to in his offense. Koren Robinson has become one of the most dangerous all-purpose players in the nation. He leads the country in reception yards per game and in kickoff returns. He ranks in the top five in the ACC in five different categories.

This offensive duo is a prime reason NC State is 4-0 for the first time since 1994 when Clemson graduate Mike O'Cain was the head coach. NC State has not been 5-0 since 1991 when they opened 6-0 only to lose at Clemson.

Chuck Amato was an outstanding linebacker on NC State teams in the 1960s, and it is thus no surprise that NC State is strong on defense. The Pack ranks second in the ACC to Clemson in pass defense, allowing 173 yards per game.

Sophomore Brian Mance ranks 15th in the nation in interceptions and is one reason Clemson ranks first in the nation in pass efficiency defense.

LeVar Fisher is the top tackler with 50, while Dantonio Burnette is second with 43. NC State will be without the services of Clayton White, one of the top strongside linebackers in the ACC. He suffered a broken wrist in the win over Georgia Tech.

Adams Looks For Clemson Record

Clemson linebacker Keith Adams can establish a Clemson record for consecutive games with at least one tackle for loss if he stops an NC State opponent behind the line of scrimmage on Saturday. Adams, a first-team All-American last year, has had at least one tackle for loss in 17 straight games, tying the record also held by current Seattle Seahawk linebacker Anthony Simmons. Simmons had a streak of 17 straight games between 1996 and 1997.

Adams has 11 tackles for loss and six sacks so far this year to lead the team in both categories. He had 35 tackles for loss and 16 sacks, both Clemson records, last season. For his career, he now has 22 sacks and 46 tackles for loss. With still a year and a half left, Adams ranks tied for fourth in Clemson history in sacks and he is tied for sixth in tackles for loss. Only Michael Dean Perry (28), William Perry (27) and Adrian Dingle (23) have had more sacks than Adams in school history.

Tigers Off to 5-0 Start

Clemson is off to a 5-0 start, Clemson's first 5-0 start since 1987 when the Tigers opened 6-0. That year, NC State ended Clemson's opening streak with a 30-28 victory in Death Valley. That was one of the most unusual games in Death Valley's history. State took a 30-0 lead at halftime, only to see Clemson come back to 30-28 in the fourth quarter. Clemson actually got the ball back with a chance to win the game on a last-second David Treadwell field goal, but a final drive stalled and the Pack had the victory. Clemson's defense had a record 19 tackles for loss, yet lost the game.

Clemson has had two perfect seasons (given a minimum of 11 games), the 1981 National Championship season and the 1948 campaign when the Tigers finished 11th in the final AP poll with an 11-0 record. Clemson and Michigan were the only undefeated teams in the nation that year.

Clemson Looks for 4-0 ACC Start

If Clemson can defeat NC State on Saturday it would give the Tigers a 4-0 start in the ACC. Best league start since the 1983 season when the Tigers were 7-0 against ACC teams for the entire season. Clemson was perfect against ACC teams in 1982, 1981, 1967 and 1978.

Clemson opened its ACC schedule with a 3-0 start in 1986, 1987 and 1988. NC State ended those 3-0 starts each time. Thus, the last three times Clemson has been 3-0, NC State prevented them from a 4-0 league start.

While NC State has ended Clemson winning streaks, Clemson has ended Wolfpack streaks. Each of the last two times NC State started a season 6-0, Clemson ended the Pack winning streak. In 1989 NC State came to Clemson with a 6-0 record and ranked 12th in the nation. The unranked Tigers came away with a 30-10 victory. Two years later, NC State was again 6-0 coming to Clemson, but the 19th ranked Tigers defeated another 12th ranked NC State team, 29-19.

The 20th Annual Textile Bowl

Clemson and N.C. State will do battle in the 20th annual Textile Bowl when the two teams meet in Clemson on Saturday. Clemson has a 12-7 advantage in the series since the game took on the Textile Bowl title in 1981, the year Clemson won the National Championship. The Textile Industry has a very important effect on the economy of North Carolina and South Carolina and the two schools competing in Saturday's game.

Many of the Textile Bowl contests have been close, including each of the last three, which have been decided by a touchdown or less. Three years ago in Raleigh, Matt Padgett booted a 20-yard field goal with just 19 seconds left to give Clemson a 19-17 victory. The Tigers drove 78 yards in 14 plays to set up the winning score. Nealson Greene hit 20-32 passes for 250 yards and Tony Horne caught eight passes for 112 to key the Clemson offense. Raymond Priestner added 89 yards rushing on 24 attempts.

In 1998 at Clemson, Torry Holt completed an incredible day with a nine yard scoring pass from Jamie Barnette with just 37 seconds left. It was his fourth touchdown reception of the day. Last year, NC State defeated Clemson 35-31 in Raleigh, a game that featured 35 first quarter points between the two teams combined. Clemson had five possessions in the fourth period with a chance to take the lead, but could not drive for a winning touchdown.

Another close game took place in 1993. Clemson held a 20-0 lead after three quarters thanks to an offense that gained 250 yards rushing, but had to hang on in the last minute to gain the victory. Tim Jones broke up each of the Wolfpack's last two pass plays of the game at the Clemson goal line over the last 12 seconds of the contest to preserve the Tiger victory.

QB Woodrow Dantzler has emerged as a Heisman Trophy candidate after a string of three games in which he accounted for more than 300 yards each time.

John McDermott

By Marsha Byers
Clemson Sports Information

John McDermott's childhood is not filled with pee-wee, middle school or many high school football memories or dream of becoming a college football player. Nor is his memory filled with recollections of afternoons spent on the football field or in the weight room with his classmates and friends. Instead it is filled with memories of being home-schooled by his mother, Jill Wolfe, and spending a lot of time with his brother and sister. It was not until late in his high school years, did McDermott become serious about playing football at the college level.

His education was experienced based. He learned early math skills by price-comparing at the grocery store. Fractions were mastered while helping his mother prepare the family meals or balancing his mother's checkbook. From National Geographic and The Learning Channel, McDermott learned geography, English and science. He loved the life lessons he was getting by his home-schooled education.

"It makes you learn more outside the box than what everyone tells you. I was learning first-hand how to live", McDermott said.

McDermott has both a younger brother and sister. His mother is home schooling both of them as she did him. Jeffrey Herbst, his 16-year-old brother, is playing football and hopes to follow in his brother's footsteps and play college football. Jacqui Herbst, his 11-year-old sister, plays basketball much like her eldest brother did when he was younger.

As a child, he loved the sports of basketball, swimming, volleyball and wrestling. He was on the Georgia state wrestling championship team his senior year of high school. He did attend one recreation league football practice, when he was 12. McDermott returned home unsatisfied and wanted to continue with the other sports he really felt comfortable with.

Only when he thought about his future did he consider playing football again. While doing full-time construction work in Georgia, McDermott decided he wanted to try to earn a football scholarship in order to receive a college education. After getting his home school credits approved, the Georgia High School Association cleared him to play in only seven games. He was forced to play defensive end because he did not have enough time to learn the assignments needed to play offensive line.

He was motivated by the doubt of those who thought he could not make it in the college football world. McDermott's home school education helped him have the confidence it took to promote himself to colleges.

"I have had to be self-motivated since I have been a young child. My Mom and dad helped me with my homework, but they did not always check up on me and make sure I was completing all my assignments," explained McDermott.

John McDermott played on more snaps last year than any other Tiger on offense or defense.

Clearance to play high school football was not his only obstacle. He had to take night classes, along with a full load during the day, to graduate from Sequoyah High School. McDermott knew what it was going to take for him to make it on the college level, because he had attended a college class with his mother when he was 13 years old. She was taking a Chemistry class at Kennesaw State University for her nursing job and she brought her son along to expose him to the college experience. He attended all the classes and took the tests and finished the course with a "B."

After the football season was over, McDermott began to go after the dream of becoming a college football player. He began to make highlight tapes in his school library. He and his mother started calling colleges and mailing out his tapes.

During this time they both learned a lot about college football. They found that in order to get a college football scholarship, they both had to be persistent and very aggressive.

"My Mom was very sure of me," McDermott recalled. "She knew that I could play football on the Division I level. I never had any doubt that she believe in me, although I had some doubt from my high school coaches."

After continuously calling colleges and recruiting coordinators, he began to receive some interest from several Division II schools. Finally big schools, Clemson, N.C. State, Alabama and Central Florida extended scholarship offers. He finally "chose Clemson for its great football tradition and the family atmosphere between the fans, coaches, player and the staff."

Upon his arrival to Clemson as the last signee of the 1996 class, he chose Industrial Education with a focus in Human Resources as his major. When McDermott completes his eligibility, he wants to train new employees in a construction business, relying on his background in construction. He received his degree in May and is currently working on graduate courses in education.

As a freshman, McDermott played defense and was later moved to offense. He found his place on the Clemson offensive line and was recognized for his performance earlier this year against Wake Forest with the Hit of the Week award.

"I have grown to love playing on offense because I get to score. I really like the aggressive Clemson offense," said McDermott. "I hear the crowd first when we score, then I run into the endzone and congratulate my teammates."

Last season McDermott led the entire Clemson team in total snaps with 923. McDermott went from playing just 68 total plays in his first two seasons to playing 80 snaps Clemson's opening game against Marshall. He started in every game and was the only player (offense or defense) to play in every snap of 10 games.

McDermott said he has learned a lot from coach Tommy Bowden and his staff.

"They are the best coaches I have ever had. Coach Bowden and coach (Rich) Rodriguez are very intense" McDermott said. He also had a lot of spiritual growth as a person by the addition of Darren Bruce, the team chaplain. Bruce leads a Fellowship of Christian Athletes meeting on Wednesday nights that McDermott regularly attends.

McDermott spends his free time woodworking. He enjoys building things for his friends and family. He has built several things this year for his house in Seneca, that he shares with teammate Theo Mougros (see page 7). His favorite class at Clemson is Construction Technology.

"I made a picnic table for my little sisters, and a dog house. The table is outside in my backyard next to the pool." On his off weekends McDermott enjoys going home to Woodstock, GA and helping to repairs around his house for his mom.

After football season is over, McDermott intends to join the Habitat for Humanity group in Clemson. He will help build houses and speak in churches in the Clemson area asking them for volunteers and support. His past experience in construction and his degree will be very helpful as he looks to give back to the Clemson community.

Theo Mougros

By Samantha Carruth
Clemson Sports Information

Theo Mougros grew up as a troublemaker and the class clown who never wanted to follow the rules. Mougros fondly remembers the principal calling the secretary into the office so he could receive a paddling. He had no goals set in life, until ninth grade when he was introduced to the game of football.

"I didn't think about playing football until my freshman year of high school when my brother was playing ball. He influenced me to begin playing and steered me on the right path, Mougros said. "I buckled down and became aware of the things I could achieve with football."

After getting on track, Mougros was recruited as a defensive lineman by the Clemson coaches.

"When the opportunity came knocking, I became very interested," said the starting offensive guard from Tarpon Springs, FL. "When I visited the campus, I knew Clemson was where I wanted to go because it felt like home."

Mougros red-shirted his freshman year and then played sparingly on both sides of the ball in 1997 and 1998. He actually played on offense and defense against Wake Forest in 1997 and versus Furman in 1998.

Then in the spring of 1999, he impressed coach Tommy Bowden with his quickness and ability to pick up the up-tempo offense, and found a home on the offensive line.

"I am the type of person that likes change because it motivates me. I wanted to do what was best for the team and what was best for me," said Mougros, who is one of the more versatile players on the team having played full-back, defensive tackle and now offensive line.

Mougros stepped up to the challenge and was a big reason the Tigers averaged more than 400 yards per game, third best in Clemson history. His strong work ethic and motivation pushed him to be successful and a starter in 11 of the team's 12 games.

During the Mississippi State game in the Peach Bowl, Mougros suffered a torn ACL after playing 83 snaps. He was discouraged, but kept his head high.

"It was very frustrating and still haunts me. The past seven months have been tough, especially mentally."

Thoughts of not being able to play this year crossed Mougros' mind. He had prepared himself in case he didn't make it back. Mougros, who graduated in three in a half years with an undergraduate degree in marketing, began thinking about his future.

With Mougros' competitive nature and strong work ethic, he prepared himself for the 2000 season. He missed all of spring practice, and had not taken a hit in seven months.

"Going into camp you have to get your mind mentally prepared. I was looking forward to it because they say if your knee is going to blow, then it will go with the first hit. I wanted to get hit and get it out of my mind."

Mougros always believed if he wasn't full speed or not as up to speed as the previous season, then he didn't need to be on the football field. He proved that he was up to speed during the first game of the season and also that he was mentally tough enough to be on the field.

Since becoming a starter number 60 has developed into a team leader always trying to set a standard and precedence for the younger players.

"If you do something wrong it will wear off on them," he said. "It is like a disease, it is contagious. You have to lead the younger guys and let them know when they did a good job."

"Mougros has developed into a leader after only playing on the offensive line for a year. He is an excellent worker and a lot of that has shown up with the way he plays and produces on the football field," said offensive line coach Ron West.

Since arriving in Tigertown,

Theo Mougros made the switch from defensive tackle to the offensive line and started 11 of the 12 games in 1999 and all five games so far this season.

Mougros has gained many different experiences and memories, but the highlight of his Tiger career has been receiving his degree.

"Graduating has meant the most to me during my time here at Clemson. Football does not last forever."

The son of Greek parents, Mougros speaks Greek as his first language. He is currently pursuing a master's degree in education. He has proved that academics and football can both be managed with the right attitude after graduating in three and a half years.

"I wasn't the smartest kid coming out of high school, but I knew I had a good work ethic. I didn't want to be known as the stereotype jock so I took advantage of the resources that were available to me," he said.

Mougros believes that with the right work ethic, attitude and mind set a kid can do anything from playing football to graduating in three and a half years.

"I am not the biggest or strongest guy in the world, but with the proper attitude and mind set you can do anything."

Football will always hold fond memories for Theo Mougros. He will not only remember the Florida State and South Carolina games, but he will remember how football changed his life and put him on the right path.

Theo Mougros graduated in three and one half years and is pursuing a Master's Degree in Education.

Terry Witherspoon

By Bernie Merritt
Clemson Sports Information

Juggling school and athletics is extremely difficult at any level. In high school most athletes participate in more than one sport while attempting to earn the best education they can. In college not much changes, except the one sport an athlete has selected to play exclusively is now taking up more time than playing three sports did in high school and there are classes that make the biology one had in high school seem like gym class. So for any athlete to excel on the field and make the grade is somewhat rare. But for this season's Tiger team, Terry Witherspoon is just that rare.

As a partial qualifier out of high school, Witherspoon knew he would have to work harder in the classroom than just about anyone on the team. He also knew that at the collegiate level, football is incredibly time consuming, with the two-a-days, time in the weight room, time watching tape, daily practice and travel.

"In high school things were not always as time consuming. We still hit the weight room and the books, but I was always home pretty much by 7:30 or 8:00. Now I am lucky if I get home by 10."

Witherspoon did not just give in though. He worked long, hard days to make the grades off the field and to prove all the accolades he carried with him to Clemson would not be forgotten.

Witherspoon hails from Monroe, NC where he played for Ted Baucom at Monroe High School. He earned all-conference honors four of his three years while playing five different positions: tailback, fullback, tight end, line-backer and defensive end. He was a Tom Lemming All-American and was one of the top eight fullbacks in the country according to that publication. Witherspoon was also rated the number six player in the state of North Carolina and by SuperPrep and an All-American selection by the National Recruiting Advisor. Bluechips named him the number five running back in the ACC region and the Plyler Report rated him one of the top eight fullbacks in the South as well. He was a four-year starter ringing up 2,780 yards rushing for his career on 422 attempts and scored 39 touchdowns. In his senior season he rushed for 1,002 yards alone while reaching the endzone 17 times. In his career on the defensive side of the ball, Witherspoon had 73 solo tackles, 44 assists and 12 sacks. He also caught a touchdown pass and threw for another.

So with all the honors and awards packed up, Witherspoon made his way from hometown to the Clemson campus.

"I was nervous. I knew that things would change and that I would not be the big star and that I would have to prove myself."

Witherspoon's chance to prove himself, however, would not come right away. He knew that he would have to redshirt because he was only a partial qualifier but that did not stop him from working as hard or harder than down in the Peach Bowl versus Auburn.

"I will remember that touchdown as long as I live. It was just a great feeling to be in a bowl. That is one reason I came here was to be in bowls year in and year out."

His tremendous play on the field in 1997 and his continuing effort to not let his grades slip vaulted Witherspoon into a starting role in 1998 in just his second full year of play. He scored three touchdowns in 1998, the second most on the team. He played 35 plays per game and played at least 26 snaps every game. Had his best performance against South Carolina when he carried the ball eight times for 31 yards in the Clemson victory. His anybody else. Witherspoon decided to concentrate a lot more on his studies while making extra trips to the weight room and to the practice field. He knew that to make his high school stardom carry over into college, his work ethic would have to be that much more focused.

"I have always been encouraged in whatever I do and this time was no exception. Everybody knew I could do it and they all pushed me along 100 percent."

So by the time spring ball ended and the 1997 season approached Witherspoon was more than ready to play.

He started in four games for the Tigers in the 1997 season. He rushed 12 times for 61 yards and a touchdown versus Georgia Tech and was 11 for 71 in the win at Wake Forest. Had a career-high 17 attempts in just 32 snaps in Tigers win over Duke. He also had one rush for a touch-success on and off the field continued into the 1999 as he was the only active offensive player to score a touchdown in a bowl game before the Tigers would face Mississippi State in the Peach Bowl. He also ran for a touchdown versus North Carolina and carried the ball nine times for 33 yards in the opener versus Marshall.

Witherspoon is the first string fullback once again this year for the Tigers and the coaches look for some quality playing time from him and applaud him for his strong work ethic. The coaches also applaud the work he has done off the field as well. Before his first carries in the Wake Forest game this season, Witherspoon had already showed that he could go from a partial qualifier out of high school to one of the finest Clemson student-athletes, graduating from Clemson in August 2000 with a degree in Industrial Education.

President James F. Barker

Clemson University's 14th President, James F. Barker, is first and foremost an architect. So it comes as no surprise that after one year in office, he is already designing a blueprint for Clemson's future — a future built around such ideas as collaboration, community, and quality.

A 1970 Clemson graduate, the former dean of the university's College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities was named president in October 1999, bringing to the job a clear vision of Clemson's future. Barker has outlined a 10-year goal for Clemson to become one of the top 20 public universities in the country.

"South Carolina students deserve to have access to a top-tier education without leaving their home state," he said. "Building Clemson's academic, research and service programs to the level where we can compete with anyone will benefit our state, our students, and our alumni."

Specifics of the 10-year plan include:

- Continuing to excel in teaching;
- Increasing research support to at least $100 million a year;
- Setting the standard in public service by engaging the whole campus in service and outreach;
- Completing the current capital campaign and a subsequent one, exceeding goals in both;
- In athletics, winning another national championship in football and two other sports, and making it to the Final Four at least twice in basketball;
- Sending student performing groups to Carnegie Hall;
- Establishing a thriving Phi Beta Kappa chapter;
- Seeing at least two Clemson students win Rhodes Scholarships;
- Building a greater sense of community and diversity;
- Increasing international programs and activities;
- Seeking out areas where teaching, research and service overlap;
- Focusing on collaboration, with partners both inside and outside the university;
- Improving essential academic resources such as the library.

They are ambitious goals, but goals that Barker believes Clemson can achieve.

"The charge that I have been given is to ensure that the idea of Clemson will be stronger at the end of my service than it is now," he said at his inauguration. "I am convinced that there is no university in America stronger than Clemson when we are 'one Clemson.' A united Clemson is unstoppable."

Barker earned his bachelor of architecture degree from Clemson and his master of architecture and urban design degree from Washington University in St. Louis. Before returning to Clemson in 1986 to serve as dean of the College of Architecture, he was dean of the School of Architecture at Mississippi State University. In 1995, he became dean of the new College of Architecture, Arts and Humanities, which was created after a comprehensive reorganization and has received national attention as a new model in education.

He is a recipient of the National Distinguished Professor Award of the Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture and served as president of that association. Barker was named Fellow of the American Institute of Architects. He also has been a partner in an architectural practice.

At Clemson, Barker co-founded the S.C. Design Arts Partnership to support community design outreach projects, initiated the Charleston Architecture Center, established the university's "Arts in April" program, and developed a Mayors' Institute to help city leaders learn how to manage issues related to growth and development.

Despite his new responsibilities as president, Barker remains committed to the classroom. As dean, he taught at least one class per year. Last spring, he was part of a team teaching an undergraduate course exploring "a sense of place" in architecture, literature, and history.

"I think it's important that a president never lose touch with the classroom," he said.

The Barkers — Jim and Marcia — have two sons: 16-year-old Britt, a sophomore at Daniel High School, and Jacob, 26, who graduated from the University of North Carolina, attending on a baseball scholarship, and is now enrolled in graduate school at Clemson and working in the sports information office.

President Barker (first row, second from right) was a member of the Clemson Track & Field team as a pole vaulter.

Head Coach Tommy Bowden

When Tommy Bowden approached the 1999 season, he had one simple goal for his first Clemson team - improvement. Bowden warned Clemson supporters that the Tigers were unlikely to be bowl participants in 1999, but his main focus was to improve. Bowden's goal of improvement was reached and he was happy to be wrong about his preseason prediction, as the Tigers were invited to the 1999 Chick-fil-A Peach Bowl.

Unfortunately, Clemson lost the bowl game 17-7 to Mississippi State, which finished the season ranked 12th in the nation, Clemson's fourth loss to a team ranked in the top 12 of the final AP poll. That loss did not tarnish the great accomplishments the Clemson football team achieved in its first season under Bowden.

In 1999, Bowden accomplished a personal milestone that no Clemson coach had attained since 1981, the year the Tigers won the National Championship. Bowden became the first Clemson coach since Danny Ford to be named ACC Coach of the Year.

Bowden led the Tigers to a 6-6 record and 5-3 mark in the ACC against the nation's third toughest regular season schedule according to Jeff Sagarin. The Tigers finished tied for second with Georgia Tech and Virginia in the final conference standings, a six-place improvement over the previous season, the greatest one season jump in ACC history in league play.

The Tigers also made a four-game ACC win improvement in 1999. It was just the fifth time in ACC history that a team made that big of a league victory jump. Bowden had taken over a team with a losing record and brought it to a bowl game in his first season, just the sixth coach in ACC history to accomplish that feat.

The Clemson program set or tied 38 school records in Bowden's first year, including 26 on offense. Ironically, Bowden's first Tulane team set or tied 26 offensive school records.

The improvements in the ACC standings were thanks in large part to an improved offensive attack. The Clemson offense ended the season averaging 402.6 yards per game, nearly a 100-yard per game improvement over 1998. The Tigers scored 26.8 points per game in 1999 compared to 19.8 in 1998. Clemson's 42 touchdowns in 1999 ranked fifth best in school history.

Bowden's first Clemson team averaged 67.1 more yards a game through the air than in 1998, as the Tigers passed for 3019 yards, an all-time Clemson record. Clemson quarterbacks made good on 59.6 percent of their pass attempts in 1999, third highest percentage in school history.

In 1998, Clemson ranked 103rd in the nation in turnover margin, but in 1999 the Tigers were 11th, an incredible 92-place improvement in the rankings. Clemson scored 100 points off turnovers, while opponents only scored 44 in the same statistical category.

Under Bowden, Clemson continued its strong defensive tradition. With 47 sacks, Clemson was first in the ACC in that category for the second straight season, and the final total established a Clemson record. Three players (Keith Adams - 15.5, Chad Carson - 12.0, Robert Carswell - 10.8) all had nearly 11 tackles per game in 1999 to rank among the top four tacklers in the league. Adams, a sophomore, finished the season with 186 tackles, highest in the nation, and broke the Clemson single season tackle record held by Anthony Simmons. They all contributed to the 17th best pass efficiency defense in the nation, a unit that had 19 interceptions, ninth highest in the country.

Thanks to the wide open offensive attack several Clemson players made their presence felt in the national rankings and the Clemson record book. Sophomore running back Travis Zachery had 16 touchdowns, to rank ninth in the country in scoring. He was injured in the first quarter of the Peach Bowl and did not get a chance to tie or break Lester Brown's single season Clemson record for touchdowns.

Junior wide receiver Rod Gardner set two Clemson single season records and became the school's first 1000-yard receiver. Gardner had 80 receptions for 1084 yards, Clemson single season records in both areas. He was 17th in the nation in receptions per game with a 6.6 mark. His yards per game average of 91.7 was 23rd best in the nation.

For the first time in Clemson history two Tiger quarterbacks threw for over 1000 yards in a season. Woodrow Dantzler passed for 1506 yards, while Brandon Streeter passed for 1466 yards during the regular season. The two diametrically opposite quarterbacks had total offense games over 350 yards, a testimony to Bowden's offensive system.

On the defensive side of the ball, Adams, a first-team All-American by Football News and the ACC Defensive Player of the Year, set the league tackle for loss record in 1999. Adams recorded 33 tackles for loss, six better than the previous mark during the regular season (Adams finished the season with 35 tackles for loss, but the ACC does not count bowl stats). He broke the school record for tackles in a game at South Carolina with 27.

Junior free safety Robert Carswell tied for first in the ACC and was 10th in the nation in interceptions with six. Senior cornerback Dextra Polite set an all-time Clemson record with 17 passes broken up.

Four of Clemson's five losses in 1999 came by four points or less and three of the five losses came against the only undefeated teams in the nation during the regular season (Marshall, Virginia Tech and Florida State).

Bowden Bowl I, the first ever meeting between father and son head coaches in college football history, took place on October 23, 1999. Bowden faced his father Bobby's top ranked Florida State team in Death Valley in front of a national television audience. The Tigers lost a tough battle to the eventual National Champions, 17-14, the closest margin of victory for the Seminoles and the fewest point they recorded all season by two touchdowns.

Making strong improvement in his first year with a program is nothing new for Bowden. In the two seasons he was the head coach at Tulane, Bowden took a team that had been 4-18 in the two years previous to his arrival, and emotionally and numerically reversed the team's fortunes with an 18-4 record, posted an 11-1 conference mark and finished the 1998 season ranked seventh in the nation by both polls. Tulane and Tennessee were the only undefeated teams in college football in 1998.

The Bowden Family: Tommy, Linda, Lauren and Ryan.

His Tulane team had a 22-game average of 39.7 points, 5.1 touchdowns, 463 yards of total offense, 270.5 yards passing, and 192.6 yards rushing. The Green Wave averaged 6.34 yards per play, and converted on third down 47 percent of the time.

Some say the most telling statistic in terms of wins and losses and the most telling statistic when it comes to coaching ability is turnover margin. The Green Wave ranked fifth in the nation in turnover margin each of his seasons at Tulane.

It didn't take Bowden long to put Tulane back on the college football landscape. In his first year, Tulane was picked last in the preseason polls of Conference USA. But, he led the New Orleans based school to a 7-4 record, a second-place conference standing with just one league loss, and set 33 school records in the process, including 26 on offense.

Tulane's accomplishments on offense were noteworthy in 1997, but their offensive charts reached uncharted areas in 1998. Tulane stood as the only school in the nation that averaged over 300 yards per game passing and 200 yards per game rushing. The team ranked fourth in the nation in total offense (507.1 per game) and second in scoring (45.4 points per game).

The Green Wave scored 40 or more points in eight contests in 1998, including each of the last seven games. In one game the Green Wave scored 72 points and rolled up 704 yards of total offense. They converted 52 percent of their third-down opportunities for the season and had just 11 turnovers in over 800 plays.

The 1998 season saw the program post a perfect 11-0 regular season under Bowden, its first perfect regular season since 1931. The Green Wave won Conference USA, its first league title since Tulane won the SEC in 1949. Bowden was named Conference USA Coach of the Year.

Bowden's team ranked seventh in the final AP poll and was a mainstay in the polls from the third week of the season on. Tulane had not been ranked at any time since 1979 and had not been ranked in a final poll since 1973. After Bowden accepted the job at Clemson, Tulane defeated BYU in the Liberty Bowl, 41-27.

Bowden's 11-0 record at the time was the 17th perfect regular season in college football in the decade of the 1990s.

A look to that list reveals two other coaches named Bowden. His father, Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden, had a perfect regular season in 1996 and 1999, while his brother, Terry, posted a perfect regular season in 1993. Obviously, the Bowdens are the first family of college coaching and this "Wonder Years" environment had a lot to do with Tommy Bowden's decision to enter the coaching world.

The fatherly influence of a college coach who reached 300 career wins against his son in 1999, also had an influence on other members of the family. Terry has been a head coach at Samford and Auburn, posting a 47-17-1 record at the latter. Terry serves as an in-studio commentator for ABC's college football package. Jeff Bowden is in his sixth year as wide receivers coach at Florida State.

Tommy Bowden began his college football experience as a walk-on wide receiver at West Virginia. He played for his father between 1973-74-75 and then for Frank Signetti during the 1976 season.

As a junior he caught 15 passes for 189 yards and one score. Bowden remained at West Virginia for the 1977 season and began his coaching career, serving as a graduate assistant on Signetti's staff. His interest in coaching only became more intense after that first year as a GA. His father then hired him as a secondary coach at Florida State for the 1978 season.

That experience confirmed to Bowden that he was in a profession that would be his life's work. The Seminoles posted a 19-4 mark in his two seasons at Florida State.

In 1980, Bowden joined the staff at East Carolina, where he coached for the Spring practice session of 1980. That spring, he moved to Auburn and served as the Tigers running backs coach for the 1980 season. Among the players he coached was James Brooks, who went on to a 13-year NFL career and is still second in Auburn history in rushing.

In 1981, Bowden returned to Tallahassee as the tight ends coach. In three more years at Florida State, the Seminoles posted a 23-12 mark and played in a pair of bowl games. The 1982 team ranked 13th in the final poll, claimed a 9-3 record and a Gator Bowl championship.

In Tommy's five years as an assistant coach under Bobby Bowden at Florida State the Seminoles were 42-16. In 1984, Bowden accepted his first job as a coordinator. He served under Steve Sloan at Duke as the Blue Devils quarterbacks coach and offensive coordinator. It was as the Duke offensive coordinator that Bowden made his first trip to Death Valley as a coach. Among the players Bowden tutored was Anthony Dilweg, who went on to an NFL career.

After three years at Duke, Bowden became the wide receivers coach at Alabama under Bill Curry. It was at Alabama that Bowden refined his offensive coaching prowess under noted offensive mind Homer Smith, then the Alabama Offensive Coordinator.

In 1990, Bowden returned to a coordinator position, serving Kentucky as its offensive coordinator and wide receivers coach. That season he helped the Wildcats to their first upper division SEC finish since 1984.

In 1991, Bowden joined Pat Dye at Auburn. He would remain with the SEC Tigers for six years, his longest stint as a college assistant coach. During his tenure, Auburn was a combined 46-20-2, including a perfect 11-0 season in 1993. Auburn had four Associated Press top 25 seasons, including a number-four final ranking in 1993 and a number-nine final rating in 1994. The Tigers were 20-1-1 in 1993-94 combined.

Bowden worked under his brother Terry Bowden for his last four years at Auburn and the Tigers had a 36-9-1 record with both Bowdens on the staff.

Born on July 10, 1954, in Birmingham, AL, Bowden is married to the former Linda Joan White, who he first met when the two were in school together at Morgantown High in West Virginia. The couple has two children, Ryan (18), a freshman at Clemson, and Lauren (15), a student at Daniel High.

Death Valley

Clemson Memorial Stadium has been held in high esteem for many years. Whether it be players from the 1940s and 1950s, opposing players from the 1970s and 1980s, or even professional players in the 1990s, the ambiance of this special setting is what college football is all about.

The storied edifice added to its legend when the first meeting of father and son head coaches (Bowden Bowl I) took place before a sellout crowd of more than 86,000 fans.

In the 1970s, 1980s and 1990s, various publications named top 10 stadiums in college football and Clemson Memorial Stadium, affectionately known as "Death Valley," has been a common denominator on those lists.

The facility's mystique is derived from its many traditions, which date to its opening in 1942, the legendary games and players, and Clemson's corresponding rate of success. Clemson has won 202 games in the previous 58 years there (202-80-7) and has won over 70 percent of the contests. Thirty times since 1983, crowds have exceeded 80,000.

The stadium has definitely been good to the Tigers who call it home, but the stadium was constructed against the advice of at least one Clemson coach. Just before head coach Jess Neely left for Rice University after the 1939 season, he gave Clemson a message. "Don't ever let them talk you into building a big stadium," he said. "Put about 10,000 seats behind the Y.M.C.A. That's all you'll ever need".

Instead of following Coach Neely's advice, however, Clemson officials decided to build the new stadium in a valley on the western part of campus. The place would take some clearing—there were many trees, but luckily there were no hedges.

The crews went to work: clearing, cutting, pouring, and forming. Finally, on September 19, 1942, Clemson Memorial Stadium opened with the Tiger football team thrashing Presbyterian College, 32-13. Those 20,000 seats installed for Opening Day would soon grow; and grow and grow. This year Clemson celebrates its 59th year in this outstanding facility.

When the original part of the stadium was built in the early 40's, much of the work was done by scholarship athletes, including many football players. The first staking out of the stadium was done by two members of the football team, A.N. Cameron and Hugh Webb. Webb returned to Clemson years later to be an architecture professor, and Cameron went on to become a civil engineer in Louisiana.

The building of the stadium did not proceed without a few problems. One day during the clearing of the land, one young football player proudly announced that he was not allergic to poison oak. He then commenced to attack the poison oak with a swing blade, throwing the plants to and fro. The next day, however, the boy was swollen twice his size and had to be put in the hospital.

There are many other stories about the stadium, including one stating that Frank Howard put a chew of tobacco in each corner of the stadium as the concrete poured.

Howard said that the seeding of the grass caused a few problems. "About 40 people and I laid sod on the field," he said. "After three weeks, on July 15, we had only gotten halfway through.

"I told them that it had taken us three weeks to get that far, and I would give them three more week's pay for however long it took. I also told them we would have

Clemson has had 30 crowds over 80,000 in Death Valley, including the record of 86,092 for Bowden Bowl I in 1999.

50 gallons of ice cream when we got through. After that it took them three days to do the rest of the field. Then we sat down in the middle of the field and ate up that whole 50 gallons."

Howard said that on the day of the first game in the stadium, "the gates were hung at 1:00 pm and we played at 2:00 pm." But that would be all of the construction for a while. Then in 1958, 18,000 sideline seats were added and, in 1960, a total of 5,658 West end zone seats were added in response to increasing attendance. With the large end zone, "Green Grass" section, this expansion increased capacity to about 53,000.

Later, upper decks were added to each side of the stadium as crowds swelled-the first one in 1978 and the second in 1983. This increased capacity to over 80,000 which makes it one of the 10 largest on-campus stadiums in the country.

The effect spiraling inflation has had in this century can be dramatically seen in the differences in stadium construction. The original part of the stadium was built at a cost of $125,000 or at $6.25 a seat. The newest upper deck was finished in 1983 at a cost of $13.5 million, or $866 a seat.

Through the years, Memorial Stadium has become known as "Death Valley." It was tagged this by the late Presbyterian coach, Lonnie McMillan. After bringing his P.C. teams to Clemson for years and getting whipped, McMillan said the place was like Death Valley. A few years later the name stuck.

On November 16, 1974 the playing surface was named Frank Howard Field for the legendary coach because of his long service and dedication to the University.

Luckily, the stadium wasn't built behind the Y.

Running Down The Hill

"Mark Richt (assistant coach) was talking to Jeff Bowden (assistant coach) telling him what to call. Jeff was screaming at a player not five yards away and that guy couldn't hear him.

"When we went out to warm up it felt like a National Championship game. When I went back to the team (in the locker room) before the game, I said this is going to be great practice for playing at Florida because this is as loud as it gets."

Florida State Head Coach Bobby Bowden

"Death Valley really lives up to its image. I was impressed with this stadium. When you put 80,000 people in there, it really feels like they are on top of you. I would hate to be Georgia Tech or whoever else comes in here."

San Francisco 49ers Quarterback Steve Young

"Clemson's record at home is not a coincidence. Running down the hill is a part of that record. You get so inspired, and so much of college football is about emotion. You get out of that bus and you hear the roar of the crowd and it gives you chills up and down your spine."

Former Clemson All-America kicker David Treadwell

"The rock has strange powers. When you rub it, and run down the hill, the adrenaline flows. Its the most emotional experience I've ever had."

Six-time All-Pro and former Clemson All-American Michael Dean Perry

"Running down the hill is still talked about everywhere I go. Players who played against Clemson when I was in college remember us running the hill and thinking we would gain some type of spirit. The adrenalin rush was unbelievable for a Clemson player and quite a shock for the opponent."

Former Clemson All-American Jerry Butler

"Last spring (1999), New York Knicks Head Coach Jeff Van Gundy came to Clemson for a coaching clinic. One of the first things he said was, 'before I leave I've got to rub Howard's Rock.' So, we brought him to the rock about midnight one night. He rubbed the rock, but he wouldn't run down the hill. He was a little afraid of that."

Clemson Head Basketball Coach Larry Shyatt

"It has always been a dream to run down that hill. You get to the top and it's emotional because you think of all the players that have done the exact same thing that you are doing. When you get to the bottom you look up and see 80,000 people hollering and you realize you have a tradition to live up to."

Clemson Traditions

FIRST FRIDAY PARADE

The Clemson football season kicks off each year with the annual First Friday Parade. The once-a-year event takes place on the Friday afternoon prior to the first home football game. Floats from various fraternities and sororities and other campus organizations are represented in the parade that rolls down highway 93 in front of the President's house in Clemson. The parade culminates at the Amphitheater in the middle of campus where the first Pep Rally of the year takes place.

The Grand Marshal of the Parade is featured at the Pep Rally. Recent Grand Marshals have ranged from former PGA professional Dillard Pruitt, to College Football Hall of Fame legends Jess Neely and Frank Howard, to noted television announcers Brent Musburger and Ara Parseghian.

HOMECOMING

Clemson holds a classic homecoming every year. Displays by fraternities and sororities that are months in the making, are built on Bowman Field the week prior to Homecoming weekend. It is an event that draws alumni and friends of Clemson from all over the country.

The Friday evening prior to the game, Tigerama is held in Death Valley, which is an event that attracts over 35,000 fans. It is widely known as the largest pep rally in the world. The Homecoming Queen and her court are presented in addition to Homecoming skits, a pep rally, and a large and loud fireworks display.

The first homecoming game played at Clemson took place on September 30, 1922 when Clemson met Centre. Clemson has a 55-18-3 record on Homecoming games over the years, a 74 winning percentage, and has outscored the opposition 1,609-996 in those previous 76 games. The average margin of victory is 21 to 12. Clemson has been especially successful on Homecoming in recent years, posting a 25-2-2 record since 1970.

HOWARD'S ROCK

When the Clemson team gathers to run down "The Hill", the players first rub Howard's Rock because of the mystical powers it is supposed to give Clemson players. The rock is mounted on a pedestal at the top of the hill and was given to Coach Frank Howard by a friend (S.C. Jones '19) who picked it up in Death Valley, CA. The Rock was first placed on the pedestal at the top of the hill on September 24, 1966, for a game Clemson won 40-35 over Virginia. In that game, the Tigers rallied from 18 points down with 17 minutes to play. The team started rubbing the rock for the first game of 1967, a 23-6 win over Wake Forest on September 23, 1967.

THE TIGER PAW

The Tiger Paw logo has become synonymous with the University's athletic teams since its invention by John Antonio. Antonio was an innovative account executive with Henderson Advertising in Greenville, and prior to the 1970 season, unveiled the Paw as Clemson's new logo. It has shown up all over the country on items owned by Clemson fans from shirts to hats to the now famous "two-dollar bills". Many institutions with a feline as a mascot have used the logo, or an impression of it.

Antonio also came up with the phrase, "Fly the friendly skies of United," when he worked for the Leo Burnette Agency in Chicago. "I've never had a logo or an emblem copied as much as the Tiger Paw," said Antonio, now 69 and living in Greenville.

Antonio still remembers the day he made the presentation of the Tiger Paw to Frank Howard, then the Clemson Athletic Director. "He wasn't saying much at all," recalled Antonio in an article in the Greenville News by Alyce Atkinson on Feb. 16, 1997. "I kind of thought I was losing this fight." At this point Antonio pulled out an orange football helmet with a tiger paw painted on the side.

"Coach Howard's eyes got as big as saucers and he smiled. From there it was downhill. Coach Howard wanted that helmet." Those Tiger paws are still on the Clemson helmets today.

N.C. State Series History

By Mandie Parrish
Clemson Sports Information

Bet some of you didn't realize you were going to watch a Bowl Game when you bought tickets to today's match-up between Clemson and North Carolina State. But you probably won't hear the PA announcer say, "Welcome to Death Valley for the 20th Textile Bowl — the annual tussle between the Atlantic Coast Conference's two textile schools."

No, that's not going to happen, but you can bet today's game will be played just as hard as a bowl game. This annual meeting between N.C. State and Clemson has been known as the Textile Bowl since 1981 — a tip-of-the-hat to the two schools' contributions to and research for the textiles industry. Both schools have outstanding curriculum in textiles and both are beneficiaries of grants made to higher education by the textile industry in the Carolinas.

In 1981, the industry was booming and on the edge of all the technology we know today. South Carolina was the nation's largest producer of textile machinery and North Carolina was its largest customer. One fourth of the nation's textile industry was in North Carolina and textiles in South Carolina provided more than one-third of the manufacturing jobs in the state. This "Bowl Series" was started as a nod to the impact these schools have and will continue to have on their state's economy. And just to up the stakes in the series, a trophy is given to the winner of the match.

The Tigers are looking to avenge their two-year losing streak against the Pack. Both of these games were high scoring: a 46-39 in 1998 and a 35-31 setback in 1999. Today, Clemson should be hoping for a repeat of its last victory over the Wolfpack at Death Valley, where they ran away with a 40-17 victory in 1996.

Or, if a close game is what you want, there's always the 1997 nail-biter. Clemson came away with fourth-quarter 19-17 win in Raleigh with Matt Padgett kicking a 20-yard field goal with 20 seconds left in the game. By the way, the Tigers have a 12-7 lead in the Textile Bowl series.

Just looking at the record books, Clemson has the advantage in this series, which today is the 69th meeting between the two ACC rivals. Clemson leads the series 42-25-1 overall and has a 13-10 lead in games played at Memorial Stadium. The series in Raleigh is tied 14 all.

But enough about statistics.

Let's talk colors and fashion in the match-up. Wait! Stay with me, I'm not talking about the runway, I'm talking about history.

Clemson's official colors are Northwestern purple and burnt orange. However, most of the athletic uniforms are orange and white, with maybe a stripe of purple. Sometimes Clemson wears all orange for special games and sometimes they mix and match.

Nelson Welch set the Clemson record with five field goals against the Wolfpack in 1991 in a game that featured the Tigers wearing purple jerseys and white pants.

Take the Oct. 26, 1991 game against State when Clemson donned purple jerseys, white pants and orange helmets. This was the first time since the 1930's the football team had worn this combination, but it worked. The 18th-ranked Tigers pulled off a 29-19 victory over the 10th-ranked Wolfpack.

The color story of the jerseys goes further into Clemson's lore. According to legend, Clemson used to have pale purple and gold as the official colors. Jess Neely (head coach from 1931-39) wanted uniforms that were more color-fast. So he changed the colors and worked with the school of textiles and developed deeper colors for the uniforms; Colors that hold up under the sun and numerous washes... hence the bold colors we associate today with Clemson.

Going further back in history, the Tigers played another color switch on the Pack. The Nov. 18, 1967 game was of importance for more than one reason. N.C. State was ranked first in the ACC and 10th nationally and was rumored to be headed for a Sugar Bowl berth. It had won its first eight games of the season but was defeated by Penn State the week before the Clemson game, thus making the match-up very important for N.C. State to keep its bowl invitation intact.

The Wolfpack was famous in 1967 for their tenacity and also for their defense's all-white shoes. A few of the Tigers decided a week before the game they needed to do something to counteract the perceived intangible advantage of State's white shoes. So, they decided they should paint their shoes orange. They had to get orange paint from eight different stores in the area to cover all the players' shoes!

The shoe-switch worked. The Pack jumped ahead in the second quarter 6-0, but it was the last they would score. Clemson scored twice to win 14-6 and clinch a tie for the ACC Championship and the sixth and final title of Head Coach Frank Howard's career.

Wearing all orange attire, Clemson has won the ACC Championship four times. Of course, the National Championship in 1981 against Nebraska was also a win for the all-orange uniforms.

Speaking of the 1981 Championship season, the contest with N.C. State that year was as stellar as the rest of their season. State scored the first, but Clemson went on to win 17-7. After that victory, the Tigers moved up to number-three in the AP poll, the highest ranking at that point in Clemson's history.

The history and traditions between these two teams are far reaching and encompass much more than just statistics. So next time someone mentions the annual Textile Bowl, make sure you know your history, and the important impact that textiles have on both schools. Don't forget all the research and jobs these schools provide.

And by all means, don't forget to mention the importance of fashion and colors for these two textile teams.

BCS & Bowl Schedule

Starting in 1998, the Bowl Championship Series (BCS) determined the Division I-A National Champion in football. In the BCS's first season, Tennessee defeated Florida State, 23-16, in the Fiesta Bowl to claim the national title. Last year, it was Florida State's turn as the Seminoles topped Virginia Tech 46-29 in the Sugar Bowl for their second national title in seven years.

The BCS Series consists of the Rose Bowl, Sugar Bowl, Orange Bowl and the Fiesta Bowl. Conferences with automatic berths include the Atlantic Coast, Big East, Big Ten, Big 12, Pac-10 and the Southeastern Conferences.

This past January, BCS members voted to extend the BCS agreement with ABC through the 2005 regular season and 2006 bowl season allowing each of the four bowls to host two national championship games.

The BCS also notes the importance of regional consideration regarding team selection. Specifically, as a member of the BCS, the Rose Bowl will host the Big Ten and Pac-10 champions in those years in which either the Rose Bowl does not have the national championship game or the Big Ten and Pac-10 champion is not ranked No. 1 or No. 2. Other "regional consideration" tie-ins include the SEC champion in the Sugar Bowl, the ACC or Big East champion in the Orange Bowl and the Big 12 champion in the Fiesta Bowl.

Any Division I-A independent team or the champion of any Division I-A conference which is ranked sixth or higher in the BCS standings, will also be eligible for the Bowl Championship Series. A year ago, more than 1.2 million fans attended college football's 23 bowl games. This season, there will be 25 post-season bowl games, from the 87th Annual Rose Bowl, to the first-year galleryfurniture.com Bowl in Houston, Texas and the Silicon Valley Bowl in San Jose, Calif.

Strength Training

Clemson fans look forward to seeing tough, hard-nosed football when they come to Death Valley or travel to other schools to watch their Tigers in action. But some of the Tigers' most intense competition and action doesn't take place on autumn Saturday's and it doesn't take place on a field. Take a peek into the Clemson Strength Training Room at almost any time of day, almost any day of the week, at any time of the year, and you will see the Tigers building the foundation for their pursuit of a championship.

Perhaps the most impressive characteristic of the facility is its size. Several years ago, it was enlarged to an astounding 11,000 square feet, making it one of the largest in the nation. In 1998, it was expanded to 14,000 square feet. The facility boasts two full lines of Nautilus machines and over 12 tons of weights. The large number of machines and free weights allows the weight room to be used by athletes from several other sports at the same time, without anyone having to wait in line at a particular station.

Within the last two years the dumbbell area and leg development areas were expanded as well as the nutrition and hydration area known as the Power Station. The Power Station features the energy and recovery drink to aid each athlete's recovery from intense training.

The plush atmosphere provides an interesting contrast to the physical exertion that takes place in the facility.

When an athlete enters the etched glass doors, he is greeted by plush, wall-to-wall carpeting, walls lined with mirrors, ceiling fans, and music from a 26-speaker sound system - a worthy backdrop for well over $500,000 worth of state-of-the-art equipment.

Color television monitors are also positioned throughout the facility. These monitors are used for training and instruction, as Tiger strength coaches film the athletes and work with them on form correction.

The large staff of four full-time strength coaches, four graduate assistants, numerous student assistants, and volunteers ensures that each football player receives proper instruction on the fundamentals of strength and speed development. Training programs at Clemson are position specific and designed to meet the needs and demands of each athlete. Also, each position is appointed a full-time strength coach that serves as a personal trainer for that particular athlete throughout his career.

Hard core training and competition in the weight room and the annual Ironman Classic will help each athlete reach optimal levels in strength and speed development. The Tiger Strength Training and Nutrition Program help each athlete to become a complete player.

Vickery Hall

Vickery Hall

Since its inception in 1991, the five-faceted Student-Athlete Enrichment Program has provided its student-athletes a continued commitment to excellence. Our approach is to address the total student-athlete, and we are committed to coaching our student-athletes to success (C.A.T.S.) not only in the athletic arena but in the academic, personal growth, career, and service arenas as well. As an original member of the

C.A.T.S. Coaching Athletes To Success

NCAA Life Skills/CHAMPS Program, we provide opportunities and services to address the changing needs and skills of student-athletes in the years during college and after graduation.

Clemson University's commitment to provide its student-athletes with the very best of facilities is evident in many ways. From the soaring upper decks of Memorial Stadium, to the state-of-the-art strength training facility, young men and women from all 19 of Clemson's varsity sports have the very best in facilities for training and competition.

Vickery Hall is no exception, as the $3 million structure is as impressive aesthetically as any of the other facilities. But the importance of Vickery Hall to the Clemson University Athletics Department is not found in the structure itself, but in the many programs that the building houses.

Vickery Hall opened in the spring of 1991 and was the first support facility in the country built solely for the all-around education of student-athletes. The two-story, 27,000 square-foot building is open throughout the day and into the evening to accommodate the extended schedules of student-athletes.

The mission of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is to monitor, guide, and encourage student-athletes to fulfill their long-term goals, and to achieve their academic and career potential.

Vickery Hall focuses on five primary areas to meet the student-athlete's needs.

ACADEMIC COMMITMENT

The academic commitment aspect of Clemson's Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has provided one of the best academic support and advising programs in the nation.

The proof is in the statistics. A record 227 Clemson student-athletes made the academic honor roll in the fall of 1999. The student-athletes had a record 2.76 GPA in the spring of 2000, just .02 from the overall student body GPA of 2.78. Records were also established for number of President's List and Dean's List students.

In the spring of 2000 the Clemson football team posted a team GPA of 2.49, highest on record. A record 21 players were named to the ACC Academic Honor Roll for 1999-2000.

The Academic Counselors perform a variety of duties to track academic progress. These duties include providing assistance in registration and priority scheduling, contacting faculty, personally checking classes, recording information, counseling sessions with student-athletes, providing diagnostic testing, and directing career aspirations.

One of the most prestigious programs that has received recognition essential to the growth of Vickery Hall is the tutorial program.

Of the 160 programs certified by CRLA, the Clemson Student-Athlete Enrichment Program was one of the first three student-athlete programs in the country to be granted a Level 1 certification from the College of Reading and Learning Association, International Tutor Certification Program. The program was also honored with the National Champs Life Skills Excellence Award in 1999, one of six schools from across the country to be honored.

Having tutor certification allows student-athletes to be provided the highest quality of academic assistance possible. Approximately 80 tutors are hired to provide academic support in the many subject areas offered.

Many post-graduate scholarships and internships are also available to student-athletes continuing their education through postgraduate studies. Our student-athletes are provided timely information regarding these opportunities and the resources necessary to assist in the application process for either scholarships or internships.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs has recognized the need for students to have access to high-quality computing equipment and has made a commitment to provide the student-athletes at Clemson with one of the largest computer labs in the country. Located on the first floor of Vickery Hall is the Microcomputer Laboratory. The lab is open seven days a week, for 16 hours on Monday through Thursday, and a limited time on Saturday and Sunday. During exam periods the lab hours are extended.

The lab staff has a full-time computer manager, and also graduate students, many of whom are pursuing advanced degrees in computer science. Lab staff members are available for tutoring of any Computer Science course, as well as the many management, engineering, and business courses that deal with personal computers.

The Department of Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs is committed to providing state-of-the-art computing facilities. New computers have recently been purchased bringing the lab to a state of the art facility. More than 50 computers are available for student-athletes.

All computers are fully connected to the internet allowing for access of computers throughout the world for research and communication.

PERSONAL DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

One of the most important programs that helps student-athletes reach their full potential and engage successfully in this college experience is the Personal Growth and Development Program.

One of the key components of this program is the first-semester freshman transition class designed to assist the student-athlete in making a successful transition into his/her university and athletic life. All first-semester freshmen attend a semester-long series of workshops targeting the transitional issues of time management, organizational strategies, health and wellness issues, athletic issues, diversity issues, career orientation, and service training. Throughout the academic year, all student-athletes are required to attend four large-group programs, which focus on pertinent social, health, and athletic issues.

CAREER DEVELOPMENT COMMITMENT

The Career Assistance Program provides student-athletes an opportunity to fulfill career aspirations by participating in various career seminars offered by the staff at Vickery Hall. The philosophy of this program is to provide student-athletes with job-searching skills and strategies, internships, practical experience, and summer employment. These programs are designed to address specific career opportunities and acquire information about the student-athletes for each year.

By using the resources available to the University, Alumni Center, and the Athletic Department, the staff is working to establish a network of businesses, companies, and executives who will help assist with the Summer Employment Assistance Program. The program's main goal is to provide the student-athletes with job experience and a work history, which he or she can apply to his or her academic discipline.

The Career Assistance Program is coordinated from the academic colleges, the Placement Center, and through the Athletic Department contacts. This program is designed to better prepare the student-athlete for full-time employment and focuses on resume writing and interview techniques.

SERVICE COMMITMENT

Providing community and outreach service to student-athletes and the surrounding community by engaging the student-athletes in hands-on interactive programs is an important aspect of the Student-Athlete Enrichment Programs. The staff of SAEF coordinates various activities each year to engage student-athletes in community outreach projects along with academic programs.

Another aspect of the service commitment is that of community service. The purpose of community service is to allow the student-athletes to become involved with the happenings of the community while giving back at the same time. Each year every team is required to perform at least two community outreach projects. Recently implemented was a new community service program entitled Success Away From the Game. The purpose of this program is to combine athletes of different sports in community outreach programs. By doing this, each outreach program participates, thus creating a diverse group of athletes with new and different ideas. At the end of each year, six student-athletes who have demonstrated outstanding commitment and contributions to the community are recognized as the Top Six by the ACC.

LIFELine, another aspect of community service, consists of chosen football players who work together in specific community outreach projects. LIFELine has approximately 20 members along with a president, vice president and secretary. Once a month, these young men meet to discuss future projects. To date, they have sponsored Hi-Five Day, planted a garden at Helping Hands Children Shelter, and held reading programs at elementary schools. These young men have vital roles in both the community and the athletic arena.

To assist our student-athletes in becoming effective service leaders and communicators we provide service and speaking training, which anticipates the demands placed on a student-athlete when he/she might be speaking with a group of young people or also speaking with the media.

ATHLETIC COMMITMENT

Under the direction of athletic director Bobby Robinson, Clemson is undoubtedly one of the elite programs of Division I athletics.

Five Clemson teams ranked in the final top 10 of their respective sports last season, including three spring sports. Last year marked the fifth straight year Clemson has had at least seven top 25 teams. Eleven of Clemson's 19 teams advanced to postseason play during the 1999-2000 academic year. Sixty Clemson student-athletes earned first-team All-ACC honors, the highest number since 1991-92. With a generous funding base from Clemson's booster organization, IPTAY, and the forward-thinking of our athletic administration, the Clemson Tigers will continue to be a dominating athletic force, not only in the ACC, but nationally as well.

Break From Tradition.

Traditionally, rich aesthetics, cost-effectiveness and color haven't gone hand in hand. If you wanted fashion color, you had to go to a specialty boutique and it wasn't going to be cheap. With Eastman's Chromspun® and Estron® yarns — you can have your cake and eat it too.

Chromspun solution dyed acetate yarn is available in a wide range of fashion colors and can also be produced in custom colors. It complements our popular Estron line of white yarns. Plus, we make all Eastman® yarns in the USA. As a matter of fact, Chromspun is the only colored acetate yarn made in America. That's a tradition we're proud of.

Your Mom was right:

You ARE judged by the
you keep.

When we introduced the Clemson National Scholars program last year, we knew we would be competing against some pretty tall company. When you're recruiting students from across the nation who have an average SAT score of more than 1500 and are in the top 1 percent of their class, you're up against the likes of Harvard, Duke, Stanford and other highly ranked universities. After the best prospects were identified, they were brought to campus for a weekend of interviews, evaluations and intense recruiting.

When the dust settled, Clemson had landed nine out of 15 top prospects, leaving admissions officers at some of the nation's most elite universities scratching their heads and wondering why anyone would turn down their scholarship offer.

The Clemson National Scholars endowment, currently valued at $6 million, is a direct result of Clemson's ongoing capital campaign. The endowment will eventually fund 25 scholarships for entering freshmen each year. The full four-year scholarships include all costs for tuition, fees, room and board, and other expenses. The National Scholars will also participate in a summer term of study abroad.

Clemson University:
It's the company
we keep.

Clemson Athletics Heritage

By Tim Bourret
Sports Information Director

Clemson was founded in 1889 and just seven years later it fielded an intercollegiate football team. In the program's fifth season a future Hall of Fame coach, one of the most famous in the history of the game, guided the Tigers to an undefeated season.

That opening paragraph demonstrates the importance of intercollegiate sports throughout Clemson's history.

Clemson athletics dates to 1896 when the school fielded a football team and a baseball team. In 1900, John Heisman coached the Tigers to a 6-0 record, including wins over South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. Heisman put Clemson football on the map in the sport's infancy, as he posted a 19-3-2 record in his four seasons at the helm, still the best winning percentage in Clemson football history. The man they named the Heisman Trophy after also coached the Clemson baseball team to a 76 percent winning mark between 1901-04. That is still the highest winning percentage in Clemson baseball history.

Behind the play of its first All-American, O.K. Pressley, the Tiger football team won eight games for the first time in 1928 and 1929. But, like many other schools, Clemson athletics was having a negative reaction to the depression. In the 1931 football season Clemson won just one game and scored a total of 19 points for the entire season.

But, the support of its fan base brought the Tigers back to success when IPTAY was founded in 1934. During the coaching tenure of Jess Neely, America's first scholarship fund raising organization was born, as 160 Tiger supporters gave $10 a year to the organization, hence the "I Pay Ten A Year," name.

With IPTAY providing financial support, the program improved over the second half of the 1930s, highlighted by a 9-1 campaign in the decade's final year. Clemson was ranked 12th in the nation in the final Associated Press poll and was invited to the Cotton Bowl to face Frank Leahy's Boston College Eagles.

All-American Banks McFadden led the Tigers to a thrilling and landmark 6-3 victory. It culminated quite a year for McFadden, who was an All-American in football and basketball in 1939, and was named the nation's Most Versatile Athlete. He was the star of Clemson's 1939 Southern Conference basketball championship.

After the season McFadden was the number-four pick of the NFL draft by the Brooklyn Dodgers. He ranked second in the NFL in yards per carry in 1940. McFadden, also a standout in track, is still revered as Clemson's greatest all-around athlete.

Frank Howard began a 30-year reign as Clemson's Head Football Coach and Athletic Director in 1940. He won his first five games and coached Clemson to the Southern Conference Championship in his first year. Eight times he led Clemson to the conference championship in his colorful career, including undefeated seasons in 1948 and 1950. He retired in 1969 with 165 victories, still the most in Clemson history. He had 63 players drafted into the NFL and was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1989.

Heisman, Neely and Howard, set the foundation for Clemson football and the overall athletic program. The firm foundation allowed the program to reach unprecedented heights in the 1970s and 1980s. From 1977 to 1991 Clemson played in a bowl game 11 times.

That era of success included Clemson's most celebrated athletic accomplishment, the 1981 National Championship. Danny Ford's Tigers had a perfect 12-0 record that included three wins over top 10 teams. During the regular season the Tigers defeated 1980 champion and fourth ranked Georgia, 13-3, in the highest ranked victory in the history of Death Valley. The season culminated with a 22-15 nationally televised victory over Nebraska. That Clemson team was led by All-Americans Terry Kinard, Jeff Bryant, Perry Tuttle and Jeff Davis.

Clemson continued its excellence on the gridiron in the 1980s and 1990s. The Tigers had six straight seasons with just two losses from 1986-91 and won bowl games five consecutive years between 1986-90. Among the programs Clemson defeated between 1978-89 were Penn State, Nebraska, Ohio State, Oklahoma and Notre Dame. Clemson still stands among the top 20 schools in NCAA history in total bowl victories and bowl winning percentage.

While football has been the sport that has attained the most notoriety on the Clemson athletic landscape, the entire program has experienced success on a national basis for many years. Clemson's affiliation with the Atlantic Coast Conference, a charter member in 1953-54, had as much to do with this success as anything.

The league membership certainly has brought notoriety to the Clemson basketball program. Clemson has been a mainstay when it comes to postseason play over the last 25 years. The 1980 Clemson team advanced to the NCAA Final Eight, while the 1990 club won the ACC regular season championship. Most recently the 1996-97 team finished eighth in the nation in the final poll.

In the early 1970s, under athletic director Bill McLellan, Clemson put an emphasis on excellence

John Heisman coached Clemson to an undefeated season in just the fifth year of the program.

Banks McFadden was an All-American in football and basketball in 1939.

in all intercollegiate athletics. Sports were added, most notably in the area of women's athletics in the middle 1970s, facilities were added and enhanced. The consistent and loyal contributions of IPTAY members allowed the program to offer the full compliment of scholarships in every sport sponsored by the department.

Clemson was consistently among the top programs in the nation in the 1970s, highlighted by a number-three national finish in the all-sports poll of 1979-80. That year Clemson was the only school in the nation to go to a bowl games, the NCAA basketball tournament and the College World Series.

Of the 19 sports sponsored by Clemson at the moment, 15 have experienced a national top 10 finish, all within the last 20 years. All-Americans and top 25 national rankings, plus ACC Championships, are a significant part of the school's history, as the performance chart on the previous page attests.

The Tiger baseball team has one of the strongest traditions in the South. Under Bill Wilhelm from 1958-93, the program never had a losing season. In his 36 years Wilhelm won an ACC record 1161 games, made six trips to the College World Series and won 19 ACC regular season titles. His teams finished in the top 25 of the national polls 16 times. The program has continued to flourish under current coach Jack Leggett, who has averaged close to 50 wins and brought Clemson to the College World Series three times since 1994.

Clemson's soccer program did not begin until 1967, but has been one of the strongest programs at Clemson, winning 12 ACC titles and posting 21 top 25 seasons in 34 years. Clemson won national championships in 1984 and 1987. The program has also featured two national player of the year recipients, Bruce Murray (1987) and Wojtek Krakowiak (1988).

The Clemson tennis program has posted 11 ACC championships and 13 top 25 seasons under Head Coach Chuck Kriese. He has coached more national player of the year selections than any other Clemson coach. Bob Pollock's accomplishments with the men's track program have been extraordinary since 1988. His 19 ACC Coach of the Year selections are more than any other Clemson coach in any sport. He has also coached more national champions than any other coach.

The Clemson golf program has been to 19 straight NCAA national tournaments, something only Oklahoma State can also claim. The program has featured US Amateur Champion Chris Patton (1989), NCAA Champion Charles Warren (1997) and US Public Links Champions Kevin Johnson (1988) and D.J. Trahan (2000). Larry Penley has been the coach for the last 17 years and brought Clemson 15 top 20 seasons, including a number-two finish in 1998.

Women's athletics have continued to prosper since they began competition in 1975. Clemson's women's basketball program has been among the best in the nation for 25 years, first under Annie Tribble, and now Jim Davis. The program has recorded 12 Top 20 seasons. Under Jim Davis Clemson has gone to the NCAA Tournament 12 times in the last 13 years.

The play of Barbara Kennedy from 1978-82, still the ACC's all-time leading scorer and rebounder, set a standard of excellence that few athletes in any sport have duplicated. In September, she was the first female athlete inducted into the Clemson Ring of Honor.

The Clemson women's soccer team is emerging as a program of national prominence. In September of this year they defeated perennial National Champion and number-one ranked North Carolina 2-1 at Riggs Field. The team is currently ranked number-two in the nation. The program began in 1994 and has reached the NCAA Tournament and has been ranked among the nation's top 15 teams every year.

The women's volleyball team completed a 31-3 seasons in 1999 that featured a top 10 final RPI ranking. Under current head coach Jolene Hoover, the program won the ACC Tournament championship in 1997 and the regular season title in 1999.

Mitzi Kremer was a four-time NCAA swimming Champion in the 200 free and 500 free between 1987-89, the only four-time NCAA champion in Clemson athletics history.

In 1980, Noel Loban became Clemson's first individual National Champion in any sport when he won the 190-pound weight class at the NCAA wrestling

Women's soccer became the latest Clemson team to beat a top-ranked opponent when it took a 2-1 decision from North Carolina in September.

Clemson wins over Number-one Ranked Teams

Clemson's women's soccer win over #1 ranked North Carolina marked the 20th time in the school's sports history that the Tigers had gained a win over the #1 ranked team in the nation. It was the first time since the baseball team won over #1 ranked Florida State in Tallahassee on April 10, 1999. The women's soccer team's victory was the first time Clemson had beaten a #1 team on the Clemson campus since Feb. 15, 1992 when the Lady Tiger women's basketball team defeated a #1 ranked Maryland team, 72-55. The baseball program has nine wins over the #1 ranked team. The men's soccer program is second with five #1 wins.

meet. It began a flood of national titles for Clemson.

Entering the 2000-01 academic year, Clemson had three team national titles (football in 1981 and men's soccer in 1984 and 1987) and had 23 individual national championship performances in eight different sports. Clemson's excellence in all areas has continued under Bobby Robinson, the department's director since 1985. Under his watch, Clemson has won 19 of its 23 national championships.

Clemson athletes are known nationwide for their accomplishments at Clemson, but the school's reputation has been enhanced by their success as professionals. Clemson had a record seven former basketball players in the NBA in 1999-00, while seven former baseball players were in the major leagues.

Seventeen former Tigers are on NFL rosters in 2000.

Clemson has had a member of the Super Bowl Championship team 25 times, including two, Tony Horne and Dexter McCleon, on the 1999 champion St. Louis Rams. Recent Clemson Hall of Fame inductee Jeff Bostic was a three-time winner with the Washington Redskins. Horace Grant represented the Clemson basketball program with distinction when he was a member of the World Champion Chicago Bulls between 1991-93. Jimmy Key headlines a list of four former Tigers who were members of World Series Championship teams.

Jonathan Byrd became the 14th Clemson athlete to earn first-team All-ACC honors four consecutive years.

Tiger Band

By Kelly McGinity
Clemson Sports Information

Today in Death Valley the Clemson Tigers meet the N.C. State Wolfpack in the annual Textile Bowl tussle. While the two teams entertain us on the field, the Tiger Band will be Shakin' The Southland from both the field and the stands.

Festivities will begin with the traditional pre-game show. The first selection will be the "Orange Bowl March" followed by "Tiger Rag" as the band forms the script Tigers. After the "i" is dotted, the pre-game show will conclude with "Washington Post", "God Bless America", the "Star-Spangled Banner", and as always the Clemson University alma mater.

Today dotting the "i" will be Frank Hunter from Seneca, SC. Hunter retired this past year after teaching Textiles at Clemson for 19 years. He graduated from Clemson in 1961 with a Bachelor's of Science degree in textiles. Hunter went on to earn a Masters Degree in 1963 from the Institute of Textile Technology in Charlottesville, VA.

Hunter has always had a close relationship with Clemson athletes as their advisor and in helping them find jobs after they graduate. Each year for the N.C. State football game, Mr. Hunter would either take a group of Clemson students up to the game or host a group of N.C. State textile students depending whether the game was home or away. Joining Hunter on the field today will be his wife of 47 years, Betty Zorn Hunter from Denmark, SC, his two sons Frank Jr. and Roger, and his granddaughter Shawna Leigh Hunter.

For the Halftime show today, Tiger Band presents "Pure Funk". Music selections will include "Theme From Shaft" by Issac Hayes, "Play That Funky Music" by Wild Cherry, "Celebration" by Kool and The Gang, and "In The Stone" by Earth, Wind and Fire.

An important member of the band is the Drum Major. The Drum Major acts as the field conductor during the performance and the field assistant to the Director during rehearsals. Taking attendance, correcting individual errors and style problems, and assisting with the efficient teaching of marching drills to the band are all part of a Drum Major's responsibility. Tiger Band has four Drum Majors.

The newest Drum Major in Tiger Band is Gresham Barker. This is his first year as Drum Major, but his fourth in the band. Barker is a native of Camden, SC and a graduate of Camden High School. He is a senior majoring in Civil Engineering.

The youngest Tiger Band Drum Major is Becky Graham. This is Graham's second year as a Drum Major and third year in Tiger Band. She is also from Camden, SC and a graduate of Camden High School. Becky is a junior majoring in Nursing.

Ginny Browning is in her second year as Drum Major as well. She has been in Tiger Band for four years. Browning is from Florence, SC and a graduate of West Florence High School. Browning is a senior majoring in Microbiology.

Andrea Randolph is in her third year as a Drum Major and her fifth year as a Tiger Band member. A senior in marketing, Randolph is from Woodstock, GA and is a graduate of Sequoyah High School.

Don't forget to pick up your copy of Tiger Band's most recent CD, Tiger Rag!, at the Tiger Band Office (119 Brooks Center) for $15.00. You can also order it by mail, just send a check (payable to:

Men's Swimming & Diving

By Anne Miller
Asst. Sports Information Director

The 2000-2001 men's swimming and diving team is looking to move up in the conference standings and the national rankings as it returns 17 swimmers from last year's team and adds nine talented newcomers. The 1999-2000 squad finished seventh at the ACC Championships after posting a 7-2 overall mark and a 2-2 record in the ACC.

Head coach Bruce Marchionda along with assistants Kathleen Milloy, Jim McGinnis, and diving coach Leslie Hasslebach are excited about the possibilities of success for this year's team. "I am looking forward to seeing what this team can accomplish," said Marchionda. "The blend of experienced swimmers who posted great performances over the last couple of years and the new impact swimmers will help the men's program earn respect from its opponents. We are going to have the opportunity to make a name for ourselves."

Freestyle

The Tigers have a strong group of returning swimmers in the sprint freestyle events. Senior Will Rogers, who finished second at the ACC Championships last year and garnered All-ACC honors, will lead the group of returnees. Marchionda also expects junior Olympian Kenny Roberts, who competed in the 100 free in Sydney, and sophomore Josh Williams to step up and hold their own in a very strong sprint conference.

Sophomore Rob Amos and juniors Andy Meek and Kenny Roberts will be strong contributors in the middle distance events. These solid returners coupled with two outstanding freshmen in Brent Hitchcock (The Woodlands, TX) and Mark Henly (Denver, PA) will anchor the Tigers' middle distance efforts.

"Hitchcock will be a solid contributor for the Tigers this year and in the future. Henly is a very versatile swimmer who will be able to cover a gamut of events for us," said Marchionda.

Four returnees and two newcomers will be Clemson's strength in the distance events. Amos, sophomore Jeff Atteberry, and juniors Joey Tighe and Andy Meek along with newcomers James Stoffer (West Chester, OH) and Travis Taylor will lead the Tigers. Taylor, a freshman from La Crescenta, CA, posted high school times that would have scored at the ACC Championships last year and is expected to have an immediate effect on the team.

Butterfly

Clemson graduated Mike Pridemore and Wes Morrow who led the Tigers in the 100 and 200 last year. However, Will Rogers and Kenny Roberts return to lead the Tigers in the fly events. Three newcomers will try to make an impact in these events as well. Freshman John Dean (Raleigh, NC), Rob Kummer (Fort Wayne, IN), and Mark Henly will challenge the returners for top spots on the team.

Breaststroke

"I am particularly excited about the strength we have in the breaststroke events. These events could be the strongest we have seen in many years," said Marchionda. "These guys should be able to mix it up with anyone in the ACC."

The Tigers return two conference finalists and an ACC scorer from the 2000 meet. Junior Matt Wilson was a finalist in the 200 while sophomore Gregor Govse was a finalist in the 100 and 200 events. Sophomore specialist Matt Norman scored in both the 100 and 200 at the ACC Championships last year. Clemson will be adding a talented freshman to the core of returners in Ryan Cassella (Cheshire, CT). Cassella's high school times indicated he could also be a finalist at the ACC Championships.

Backstroke

Marchionda expects two returners, sophomore Rob Amos and junior Joey Tighe, who posted consistent results last year, to step up and lead three new swimmers in the backstroke. The Tigers lost Adam Porter, who led the team in the 100, as well as Rob Ethridge who was also a solid contributor in that event.

Freshmen Mark Henly and Drew Scheerhorn (Holland, MI) are expected to play a big role for the Tigers in both the 100 and 200 backstroke events.

Individual Medley

Clemson has three very strong returnees in senior Alejandro Dubreuil, sophomore Gregor Govse and junior Matt Wilson in this event.

Marchionda expects Wilson to lead the Tigers in the 200 and 400 IM after posting top times last year including a personal best time of 1:50.10 in the 200 at the ACC Championships.

Two freshmen will have the opportunity to have an immediate impact on the individual medley events. Ryan Cassella, who will also compete in the breaststroke, and freshman James Stoffer should be able to step in and be competitive for the Tigers.

Relays

Marchionda predicts there will be a healthy competition for spots on the relay teams because of the overall depth of the team. He is looking for the 800 freestyle relay to be a stronger event for the Tigers this year with the addition of freshmen Brent Hitchcock, Travis Taylor, James Stoffer (West Chester, OH) and Mark Henly. Rogers, Roberts and Williams should lead Clemson in the 200 and 400 freestyle sprints while there will be a strong battle for the breaststroke and butterfly legs of the medley relays.

Diving

The Tigers have four sophomores returning who turned in outstanding results as rookies. Thomas will lead the group of returnees as he was a finalist in both the one- and three-meter boards at the ACC and qualified for senior nationals this past summer (2000). In addition to Thomas, the talent of Mike Harris, Johnathan Folds and Nate Spice coupled with the leadership of senior Andy Garrett will give Clemson a very solid group of divers.

Schedule

This year's schedule will be a challenging one for the Tigers as they will be competing against many of the top teams in the country. Marchionda wants to push the squad and believes that the swimmers will step up to the level of competition.

"If we expect to be in the top 20 in the country, we need to go after established teams already in the top 20. We are competing against some very strong teams like Virginia, North Carolina, Alabama and Virginia Tech who will challenge us," said Marchionda. "We can be competitive with all these teams and will have an opportunity to win the meets. This will be a test for the men, but I am confident that we will complete the dual meet season with a winning record. Hopefully those dual meet results will instill confidence into the team heading into the ACC Championships."

Women's Swimming & Diving

By Anne Miller
Asst. Sports Information Director

With 25 returning swimmers and 14 new freshmen, the women's swimming and diving team is poised for another outstanding year in which they will challenge for the ACC Championship. The Tigers finished with a record of 8-3 overall and 1-2 in the ACC before finishing third at the ACC Championships last year.

Head coach Bruce Marchionda, along with assistants Kathleen Milloy and Jim McGinnis as well as diving coach Leslie Hasselbach, is very excited about this squad's blend of leadership from the experienced upperclassmen and excitement from the incoming freshmen.

"We have a strong group of returnees and from top to bottom this is collectively the most talented freshman class we have had here in the last six years. They should contribute immediately and help move the program forward on a national level."

Free Style

The sprint freestyle events will be very competitive this year as there are several seasoned veterans who will help the freshmen develop. The strong core of returnees will be led by sophomore Jenna Burtch who was an ACC finalist in the 50 and 100 free and recorded a season-best time of 23.20 at the ACC time trials. Senior Leslie Anderson developed her sprint last year and is expected to be a solid contender while junior Patti Hider continues to improve on her personal best of 24.13. Junior Caroline Peterson and sophomore Elise Thielier round out the list of returnees. Marchionda predicts four rookies will challenge the upperclassmen - Lindsey Kroeger (Cincinnati, OH), Valerie Langley (The Woodlands, TX), Courtney Humes (Easton, PA), and Lisa Vilas (Greenville, SC).

The middle distance events will be led by a nucleus of four returners who should continue their dominance in this event. Sophomore Catherine Blaney will lead the group of returners along with sophomores Liz Dwors and Erin Heitz, and senior Charli Reasons. Newcomers Kensey Morris (Elliott City, MD) and Allison Gjervold (Plano, TX) will challenge the veterans.

In the distance events, Dwors, who set a personal best time of 4:51.83 in the 500 at the ACC Championships, and Blaney will lead the Tigers while junior Emily Hustead may continue to add depth in the event. Freshmen Kim Cober (Greensboro, NC) and Allison Gjervold will challenge the returnees for the top spots.

Butterfly

The butterfly events might be the most challenging for the Tigers this year as they lost several of their specialists to graduation, including Erin Cumbie who led the Tigers in the 200 last season as well as Kendra Kelly. Four returning swimmers and a rookie must step up and fill the void left by the departed seniors. Sophomores Meghan Clifford, Jessica Diebel, Elise Thielier, junior Emily Hustead and freshman Meghan Murphy (Lawrenceville, GA) will be challenged in a very strong butterfly conference.

Breaststroke

"The breaststroke should be a very strong event for the Tigers in dual meets as well as the conference championships much as it was last year," said Marchionda. There are five returners and two freshmen who will make a major contribution in the event for Clemson.

All-American Ginny Kirouac returns with the school's second fastest-ever time in the 400 IM and the fourth fastest-ever time in the 200 IM.

Sophomore Mandy Commons, an NCAA qualifier last year, will compete in the 100 and 200 for the Tigers. Commons set Clemson's all-time record in the 100 with a time of 1:03.09 at the ACC Championships in 2000. Leslie Anderson is a 100 specialist while sophomore Courtney Ellis is a specialist in the 200. Both Ellis and Anderson have posted times in the top ten on Clemson's all-time best list. Sophomore Sarah Keyes and senior Lauren Rafferty will add depth along with freshmen Katie Brown (Rockville, MD) and Caitlin Bissell (Virginia Beach, VA).

Backstroke

Five returning specialists will be challenged by three newcomers in the backstroke events. Seniors Charli Reasons and Lauren Rafferty along with sophomore Krystal Ball, will lead the Tigers. Reasons and Rafferty both have times in the top ten all-time in the 100 and 200 while Ball is tenth in the 100. Sophomore Mary Brewer and junior Nina Douglas along with incoming freshmen Lindsey Kroeger, Elizabeth Noll (Birmingham, AL), and Kate Walker (Woodbine, MD) will add to the competitive atmosphere in the backstroke events.

Individual Medley

The individual medley was one of the strongest events for the Tigers last year. Clemson returns All-American junior Ginny Kirouac in the 200 and 400 IM as well as Rafferty who made major contributions in the 200 IM last year. Kirouac is fourth all-time in the 200 with a time of 2:03.57 and second all-time in the 400 (4:16.03) while Rafferty is seventh with a personal best time of 2:04.90 in the 200. Courtney Ellis will continue to be a major force in both the 200 and 400 IM while freshmen Katie Brown, Allison Gjervold and Morgan Perry (Jacksonville, FL) will challenge the returnees.

Relay

"The Tigers will have a tremendous amount of depth in the relay events. We have 36 swimmers who all have the opportunity to contribute and work their way up to the conference team," said Marchionda. "We need the relay teams to be strong this year as their scores will be important if we expect to challenge for the ACC title."

The sprint freestyle relay will be strong with the return of Thielier, Peterson, Anderson, Burtch and Hider. Newcomers Humes and Langley should challenge for spots on the 200 and 400 teams. Blaney, Reasons, and Heitz return to the 400 team, while the 800 freestyle team is up for grabs. Blaney, Dwors, Reasons, Gjervold, Langley, Walker and Morris will be in the mix for the 800 as well as Kirouac, Hider and Heitz.

Schedule

The women's schedule is relatively similar to the men's in that the women will be facing several nationally respected programs such as Penn State, Virginia, North Carolina and Alabama.

"The team will be challenged in dual meets but should be able to step up and meet the challenge from the home opener with Virginia Tech to the ACC Championships. We have proven we can compete with almost anyone in the country and it is time to build on that," said Marchionda.

Reunion Day

By Sanford Rogers
Contributing Writer

There will be some familiar faces in Death Valley this afternoon as fifth-ranked Clemson and undefeated N.C. State prepare to do battle in a key ACC tilt. While all the Tiger fans in attendance are certainly excited about the 2000 version of Clemson football, they will also have the opportunity to recall exciting teams and players of years gone by.

This afternoon's game against the Wolfpack is a reunion weekend for the 1970, 1980 and 1990 Tiger squads. All three of these Clemson teams are separated by at least a decade, but each one has something in common. All three teams had to adjust to a transition of some form, but each laid the groundwork for the tradition that makes Clemson that special place that is today.

1970 was definitely a year of transition for the Clemson football team. For the first time since 1940, Frank Howard was not roaming the sidelines as head coach. Howard, who began his coaching career as an assistant coach at Clemson under Jess Neely in 1931, announced his retirement as head coach on December 10, 1969. He finished his career with 165 victories, 96 in ACC play and was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1989.

On December 17, 1969 a new era in Clemson football began when Hootie Ingram was named head coach. Ingram came to Clemson after serving as the defensive coordinator at Arkansas.

"It was definitely a transition," recalled Ingram, who now serves as the color commentator on the re-broadcast of Clemson games on College Sports Southeast. "I was named head coach in December of that year, but I was still the defensive coordinator at Arkansas for its game in the Sugar Bowl. My biggest priority was trying to put a staff in place and getting to know the players we had."

After visiting a few minutes with Ingram it is easy to understand how much college athletics have evolved during the last 30 years. When he arrived at Clemson the entire athletic department was housed in Fike Fieldhouse. The Jervey Athletic Center, now the home to the athletic department was still in the planning stages.

"When I came to Clemson then-coach Howard was still athletic director," remembered Ingram. "He had his office and all of my assistant coaches had an office. The only person that didn't have an office was me. I remember one of the custodial people in Fike helped me clean out a storage room. We had some carpet put down and that was my office!"

Bobby Johnson, now head coach at Furman University was a sophomore flanker on that 1970 Clemson squad. He remembers the 1970 season very well.

"The 1970 season was different from several aspects," said Johnson. "It was the first year that coach Howard was not the head coach, and that was pretty significant right there. There was an adjustment to Coach Ingram. Anytime there is a coaching change you are going to have a transition."

The 1970 campaign was full of excitement in another manner for Johnson. At that time freshmen were not allowed to compete in varsity contests. Johnson spent the 1969 season on the freshman team, but 1970 would be the university was working with Henderson Advertising in Greenville. I told Coach Howard I would glad to meet with them. John Antonio was the gentleman I met with from Henderson Advertising. We kind of hit it off because he was an Arkansas graduate and I had coached there before coming to Clemson.

"I told him that I wanted a logo that was unique to Clemson," said Ingram. "There are all kinds of different teams that have Tigers as their team name, but I wanted something unique. The tiger paw was just that."

Ingram remembers going to several area merchants to gauge their interest in the new logo, but only one responded in a positive manner at the time.

"I went in to see Judge Keller and he first year of full-fledged intercollegiate competition

"I was excited, as were all of the sophomores. To get on the field and play with the varsity in Death Valley was a big deal. We were fired up to get in there."

Even though the 1970 squad struggled to a 3-8 final record, they did manage to be a first for a Clemson athletic team. On July 21st of that year Clemson University unveiled a new logo — the Tiger Paw. When a sports fan thinks of Clemson today, one of the first thoughts has to be of the tiger paw.

"I can still remember pretty clearly how the tiger paw came to be," said Ingram. "Dr. (RC) Edwards, who was then President of Clemson University, came by my office and told me the seemed to think he could do something with this paw," remembered Ingram. "The week after the first game I went by to see him and he told me that he sold everything he had ordered with a paw on it. That kind of told me we were onto something."

The 1980 Clemson football season opened with a great optimism and ended in the exact same manner.

The Tigers, who ended the decade of the 1970's with victories over Ohio State (1978 Gator Bowl) and Notre Dame (1979 regular season), came into the 1980's with a very young squad. Danny Ford's team started just one senior on offense (kicker Obed Arri) and four seniors on defense (middle guard Charlie Bauman, right tackle Steve Durham, strong safety Willie Underwood and cornerback Eddie Geathers). After opening the season with a win over Rice, Clemson traveled to Athens for a border war against the Georgia Bulldogs. In a game that went back and forth, the Bulldogs squeaked out a 20-16 victory.

Georgia would go on to claim the 1980 National Championship. Clemson posted wins over Western Carolina, Virginia Tech, Virginia and Wake Forest in 1980, but dropped conference games against Duke, N.C. State, North Carolina and Maryland. At that point the Tigers were just 5-5 for the season, with nationally ranked South Carolina coming to Death Valley. The 8-2 Gamecocks had already secured a Gator Bowl bid and featured the eventual Heisman Trophy winner, George Rogers.

The fortunes not only turned for Clemson on that cold, overcast November Saturday, they laid the groundwork for the 1981 National Championship Season. Without question, the Tigers had some great players on the field against South Carolina in 1980, but the turnaround may have happened in the locker room before kickoff.

After warming up in their normal combination of orange jerseys and white pants, the Clemson team came back to the locker room to find a brand new uniform addition — orange pants. The roar of the crowd when the team approached the top of the hill that day is something that this writer still remembers vividly. Clemson went on to thump the Gamecocks by a 27-6 margin, with the contest serving as a real springboard to 1981.

Jeff Davis, a First-Team All-American line-backer in 1981, was a starter on that 1980 team. "The Judge" started 35 of 40 career games and registered double-figure tackle performances in 22 of his last 23 games. He was credited with 24 tackles in a 24-19 loss to North Carolina during the 1980 season, outplaying future NFL Hall-of-Famer Lawrence Taylor. Davis, who is now back at Clemson as the field director for the "Call Me Mister" program within the Department of Education, Health and Human Development, remembers the 1980 as a learning experience.

"Looking back at 1980, it was frustrating," said Davis. "We lost some games that we had no business losing, but we kept battling. It was good to end on such a positive note." Davis also remembers the South Carolina game as crucial to the future success enjoyed by the Tigers.

"I think the South Carolina game was the defining moment of the season," said Davis. "They had a great team with some super talent. Some of their players had said they were going to run us back up the hill. Well, we broke out the orange britches for the first time and played an almost perfect game. There is no doubt in my mind that the game against South Carolina restored the faith in Clemson football and put us in great shape for 1981."

The 1990 Clemson Tigers also faced a year of transition. For the first time in 11 years the Tigers would have a new head coach in Ken Hatfield. The adjustment of a new head coach is always hard, but having to deal with great expectations made it even more difficult. Clemson came into the 1990 season ranked ninth nationally.

This Clemson team proved worthy of the accolades. The Tigers tallied a 10-2 overall mark, losing only to Virginia and Georgia Tech. Both the Cavaliers and Yellow Jackets were both ranked number-one in the country during the year, with Georgia Tech earning a share of the nation title with Colorado.

The Tigers finished the year with a 30-0 pasting of Illinois and were ranked ninth in the final Associated Press Poll. It is the last time a Clemson team has ended the season in the Top 10.

Hatfield, now the head coach at Rice University, remembers the Hall of Fame Bowl win over Illinois as the high point of the season. The 30-0 victory margin was a Tiger record for victory margin in a bowl game.

"The shutout win over a great Illinois team is the fondest memory I have of that season," said Hatfield. "We played so well against them. That was a great bowl experience."

Stacy Fields was the starting tight end for the 1990 squad. Fields, who is now employed by Dow Chemical in Charlotte, NC, deserves a great deal of credit for providing leadership to a team during a difficult time.

"I was looked upon by some of my teammates to be a leader," said Fields. "Any time there is a coaching change there is having to deal with the unknown. I think it was important for the older guys on the team to let the younger guys know that we were still going to win."

Fields looks back at the Virginia game as an important part of the 1990 season. "We lost to Virginia, the first time Clemson had ever lost to them, but we came back and continued to play hard every week. We got better as the season went along."

The Hall of Fame Bowl game was a great way for the Tigers to end the year and for Fields to close out his career. He remembers the dominating offensive and defensive performance against the Illini.

"We just totally dominated that team," said Fields. "Early in the second quarter their guys were huffing and puffing. It was evident we were the more well-conditioned team."

The 1970 team was the first Clemson team to sport the famous Tiger Paw logo.

The Last Word

By Annabelle Vaughan
N.C. State Asst. Athletic Director

Fourteen years ago, in the summer between my junior and senior years of college, a busy man took the time out of his busy schedule to type a letter that would change the rest of my life. I've still got the letter, with the envelope postmarked June 13, 1986, and a postage price of 22 cents stamped on. I still pull it out of the drawer every now and then and wonder what my life would have been like if I had not received it.

The letter tells a great deal about its author. It's obviously typed by hand, not by some secretary but by the sender himself. No word processor spit out these words — they were obviously pecked out on an old manual-model typewriter. He didn't take the time to capitalize the letters, but he did take the time to ask about my summer, talk about a pretty good lunch buffet he had encountered in my hometown and offer me a job as a student assistant in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

I remember how excited I was when I saw that letter sitting in my parents' mailbox. I had gone by to see Bob Bradley (known to all as Mr. B) that spring at the advice of a friend who lived down the hall in my dorm. I was about to finish my junior year of college and really had no idea what I wanted to do after graduation. I was an English major, had won some writing awards and was an avid sports fan. I devoured game programs and media guides, but had somehow never thought that there must be an office somewhere where they put all these things together.

When I got up the nerve to call Mr. Bradley (I can't even imagine that I was nervous about calling him now. No one could possibly feel ill at ease or uncomfortable around him), he was very polite, but wasn't able to see me right then. He explained that he was in a big baseball series in Greenville and the ACC tournament was about to begin, which I realized later was one of the busiest times of his year, but he promised to try to squeeze me in when he got a minute. It only took a couple of days, even though he was driving back and forth to the baseball games, for him to call back and ask me to come by and see him.

There was barely a place to sit in his office in those days. Neat stacks of papers and books lined the walls, the floors, the desktop and the chairs. But despite the cluttered surroundings, I don't think I've ever had so cordial a host. It was my first job interview, so I had prepared answers about my writing skills, my work ethic — I even had a list of references ready for him to call. But instead of a formal interview, it seemed more like catching up on old times with your favorite uncle.

He asked about my family, my hometown and we chatted about my plans for the future (which were pretty non-existent at that point). He called in his assistants, Tim Bourret and Kassie Kessinger, and they sat and talked for a while. Finally, Mr. Bradley got up, thanked me sincerely for coming by and told me they would sit down and try to figure out if they needed my help in the office the next fall.

Annabelle Vaughan

I couldn't believe it! He hadn't asked for writing samples or what my grade point average was (and it was pretty high, so I was hoping he would ask!). He didn't quiz me about who held the Clemson rushing or passing records (I had actually looked some of those things up — I guess I thought I was going on Jeopardy or something). He had, however, gotten my home address and telephone number and promised to be in touch.

I didn't know then what I know now — that Mr. B. is ALWAYS true to his word, whether he's dealing with a head coach or a sportswriter or an insecure college student. Within a month, I had my letter and knew that in the fall, I would start working in the Clemson Sports Information Office.

I discovered later that there was a multitude of students who wanted to work in that office, but Mr. B. saw something in me that he thought showed promise and he gave me a chance. I was so ignorant of the profession (I didn't even know that there was no cheering allowed in the press box!), but I saw very quickly that I had an excellent example to follow. It was so exciting to be behind the scenes and to see people I thought were "famous," like Brent Musberger. It was obvious that those well-known people all held Mr. B. in the highest regard, but what was even more impressive was that the guys who wrote for the little hometown papers across the state also held him in high regard. Mr. Bradley treated everyone the same and always has.

I learned so much during the eight years I worked at the Clemson Sports Information Office, and continue to learn from his example every day. I've learned that always having a positive attitude, whether your team is losing or you're battling a devastating disease, will make every day a good day. I've learned that asking a sportswriter about his wife and children is just as important as making sure he's got the updated statistics and game notes. I've learned that answering your phone calls and mail personally means more than winning writing awards. I've learned the importance of relationships in this business and in any business, and I've certainly learned a lot about loyalty and dignity.

It doesn't seem like that long ago, but I've come a long way since I opened that letter more than 14 years ago. Now I'm the one urging people not to cheer in the press box and trying to make sure the local radio guys are given the red-carpet treatment just as the guys from ESPN are. I made the jump from student assistant, to graduate assistant to full-time assistant at Clemson, went on to be the Sports Information Director at East Tennessee State University and am now finishing my second year as the Assistant AD for Media Relations at North Carolina State. I've visited so many schools and met so many people, but it doesn't matter where I go, whenever anyone in the business of athletics finds out that I was at Clemson, they ask if I know Bob Bradley.

I take great pride when I tell these people that Bob Bradley hired me. It seems to me that those people automatically look at me with more respect — that's how much clout his name brings. I don't think I fully appreciated it when I worked in the office with him every day, but now hardly a week goes by that I'm not reminded in some way just how special it is to be able to say I worked with Bob Bradley.

I've been to well over 100 football games since that time and seen even more basketball contests, which makes me a rookie compared to my mentor, who just saw his 500th football game. I can't imagine how different my life would be right now if I hadn't gotten that letter back in 1986. That little piece of paper will always be as special to me as my degree or any accolades or honors that I have won. Not only would the course of my life be different, but I would be different as well without having his example to follow.

I don't talk to Mr. B. as often as I should or as often as I would like, but I talk ABOUT him more than he can ever imagine. We've written each other many letters since the summer of 1986, but I don't think I've ever written to him about how much I, as well as countless others, appreciate him, love him and treasure him. I guess this is that letter.

Thanks, Mr. B.

Bob Bradley, who witnessed his 500th consecutive Clemson football game at Duke last Saturday, is one of the pioneers of college sports information.
